Russia, Japan, France,
Snarl, for Your Mirror,
The Silver Mystery,
Worry About the Universe.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

BUSINESS IS much better with us, and the world in general. That is universally admitted.

War, on a big scale, is much nearer in the East. That every nation knows. Washington, official worrier for the whole world, worries about it.

Russia, as a hint to Japan, makes a great display of military force, as her mechanized army rumbles through the streets. One million workers, hardy, of right age for war, march behind the growling tanks and big guns.

Russia wants Japan to know what sort of trouble she is inviting. It would not be any incompetent czar-grand duke war if Russia started now.

The enthusiasm that sent the French revolutionary armies conquering everywhere animates the Russians today. Japan would meet no army of depressed moujiks, half of them without ammunition.

BRIAND SENDS "sharp notes" to Japan warning her against starting war. But the French will not find in Japan another "docile America," ready to take suggestions and orders from anyone abroad.

If Japan wants to fight, she will fight. That she does want to fight and gather in Manchuria, now, seems certain.

RUSSIA SHOWS her full set of military teeth to Japan, in warning, as a snarling dog shows the long biting teeth, at the side of his mouth, lifting his lip to avoid biting it, as the fight begins.

Darwin says that when a man sneers at an enemy, he also shows his canine tooth, because of his animal ancestry, although it is long since he has fought with his teeth.

Sneer, before the looking glass, and you will see that Darwin was right. You should read his book on the expression of the emotions.

JAPAN KNOWS that France would send notes exclusively, not men or money. And as for England, to suggest that she send troops to save Asia for democracy or for anything else would be preposterous. It takes such half-baked statesmen as this land produces to do that sort of thing.

Hard words break no bones, and Japan knows it.

CHINA IS sending masses of troops to Manchuria, a fine gesture, but nothing more. China's army, nominally, numbers more than 2,500,000, with 10,000,000 in reserve, and they are brave fighters, indifferent to death.

But few are well armed, many have no weapons, except clubs, not useful, as Hiram Johnson remarks, against Japanese machine guns and airplanes.

Some southern Chinese, attracted to the army by $10 a month, food and a chance to loot, would fight as readily on Japan's side. Many, unpaid, have sought to enroll in Japan's army—good judgment, commercially speaking.

YOU WERE TOLD here, on October 25, that the price of silver must increase rapidly. Those short of the metal were warned to change. A little later, Cyrus H. K. Curtis' London correspondent said silver puzzled "staid England" and yesterday Mr. Ochs' New York Times wrote at length about "the silver mystery."

There is no mystery. Gold has proved a failure, as a basis for world transactions, and being now absolutely cornered, by France and America, other countries must use silver, since they have nothing else.

SILVER IS selling below 40 cents an ounce, which is the cost of production in this country. It will soon sell 60 cents higher, about $1 an ounce in all probability. If the war in the East lasts some time, silver will be as scarce as gold, for it is the only money that the East can use.

The total amount of silver mined in the last 300 years, according to the Times, is worth less than the amount we lent to Europe so blithely to help with their war. There is no plethora of silver metal, only a plethora of financial geese.

UNLIKE GOLD, silver is treated as a commodity, and its continuous rise in value sends joy to brokers' hearts. They buy and sell it for customers on the New York Metal Exchange. The Times reports that millions of ounces have been bought in a day, nearly 6,000,000 ounces last Friday, for instance.

New York has taken the silver market away from London, Bombay, Shanghai and Hong Kong, and now leads in silver transactions, selling futures, as they are sold in the grain pit.

SILVER, MONETIZED at the proper ratio, as Senator Borah has said, would restore prosperity, make liberal buying and selling, manufacturing and hiring possible.

And that is coming, and soon, in other countries, more slowly here. Our influential but childish financiers believe that for them to control an inadequate world supply of gold is highly desirable.

BAD NEWS from Sir Arthur Eddington, who with Jeans and Einstein makes up the cosmic highbrow trinity of 1931.

Eddington says the universe is expanding and the atom is contracting.

You can have 10,000,000 atoms in the corner of your eye without noticing them, so a little more contracting need not worry us.

THE GREAT NEBULAE are receding from us at a speed that would worry you if exact figures were supplied. The universe, it

GIRL'S SUICIDE CAUSES BLAST

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Miss Elizabeth Bates Volck, 23, who once was reported engaged to Prince Johannes of Liechenstein, committed suicide today in a manner so unexpectedly spectacular that thousands of persons were attracted to the scene of her death.

Writing a brief note disposing of her posessions to a friend, Miss Volck turned on the gas in her apartment at 400 East Fifty-second street, in the fashionable Beekman Hill section of the midtown East Side. The accumulation of gas was ignited by the pilot light of the kitchen range, the resultant explosion being of such force as to shatter windows in other apartments of the large building. Manhattan residents as far as a mile away heard the detonation.

Miss Volck was the granddaughter of Mme. Domicio de Gama, widow of a former Brazilian ambassador to the United States. Mme de Gama is believed to be in Cheshire, England. The young woman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Milhouse, were said to be somewhere in California.

Army Leader's Manifesto Calls Nation to Arms; Hoover Considers Move

War-clouds hovering over the Far East today reflected these developments:

1—Reports were widely circulated that Gen. Mah Chan-Shan, of Heilungkiany Province, now cut off by the Japanese occupation, had declared war upon Japan.

2—President Hoover was preparing for an "important move" in the Manchurian trouble zone, including possibly an increase in this country's armed forces there.

3—Miss Lillian McCracken, of Beaver Falls, Pa., and three other missionaries were requested by the State Department to abandon their posts near the scene of Japanese-Chinese conflict.

4—Fighting was renewed in Tientsin, where American Marines were doing patrol duty, clashes in the Tsitsihar region, Northern Manchuria, between Chinese and Japanese forces.

TOKIO, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Vernacular newspapers and press dispatches tonight said Gen. Mah Chan-Shan, Governor of Hei Lung-Kiang province, had issued a manifesto to the Chinese nation declaring war upon Japan.

Hei Lung-Kiang, in Northern Manchuria, has been cut off by the Japanese occupation from the rest of China.

There was no indicating in the dispatches that the Nanking governemtn was involved in the manifesto, but since Gen. Mah is a supporter of Nanking, it would be responsible for his acts.

It was brought out that Gen. Mah had telegraphed to Chinese Nationalist and Manchurian leaders in Peiping asking them to order mobilization at Istisihar, Hei Lung-Kiang capital, of troops of Kirin province, to assist him in his contemplated finish fight against Japan.

The war office was informed 8,000 Chinese troops are ebins concentrated south of Tsitsihar, where Gen. Mah commanded the Chinese forces which retreated after a sharp fight with the Japanese last week at a railway bridge across the Nonni River south of Tsitsihar, the capital of Hei Lung-Kiang.

U. S. May Send More Troops to China

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—An important move in the Manchurian situation is being considered by the American government.

Secretary Stimson conferred with President Hoover the first thing this morning and planned to do so again.

Indications were the action would consist of renewed representations to the Japanese and Chinese governments through the American diplomatic representatives at Nanking.

Secretary Stimson declined to-

ANGELINO GRECCO, 2

BABY DIES, JOB MUST WAIT

Instead of taking a long-sought job, John Grecco, laborer, of 434 Taylor street, was preparing for a funeral in his home today.

After seeking employment for 19 months, Grecco was to have gone to work this morning on a sewer construction job in East End. As he was making ready to leave, his neighbors, notified by telephone, told him his son, Angelino, aged 2 years and 3 months, had died in the West Penn Hospital.

Hunger-Crazed Men Battle For Food Thrown Aboard 'Ghost Ship' by Rescuers

International News Service.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Nov. 9.—Bringing a tale of suffering, hunger and thirst which nearly cost the lives of some of the 22 poor immigrant passengers and crew on the 65-day journey from Cape Verde Islands, the two-masted sailing packet Arthur S. James, battered to a helpless hulk by incessant storms, was being towed here today.

The Coast Guard destroyer Davis found the little packet, her sails in tatters and her rudder swept away, wallowing helplessly in heavy seas 105 miles south of Nantucket Island and 135 miles east of New York.

After tossing fresh vegetables, bread and water aboard the packet, and fuel with which they made their first hot meal in 35 days, the Davis took the James in tow and headed for this port. According to radio reports from the Davis, the men ate ravenously and fought for the food tossed them.

For two weeks, the Arthur S. James, more than a fortnight overdue, has been the "ghost ship" of the Atlantic. She was first traced, late in September, to a point 350 miles off Cape Cod. Nothing more was heard or seen of the "mystery schooner" until Saturday, when William J. Collis, a Nantucket fisherman, notified Coast Guardsmen that the packet was in distress 30 miles southeast of Nantucket Shoals.

Those aboard the ship revealed a dramatic story of their struggles with the sea on the long storm-tossed voyage from Fayal, Cape Verde Islands. Capt. Fortunato Alves, of New Bedford, had stocked the packet with enough supplies for the usual 30-day passage. When it became evident, after running into a series of storms, that the voyage would take longer than expected, the passengers and crew were put on rations. The rudder was disabled in a storm and after several days, a jury rudder was rigged.

OATH GIVEN TO STADTFELD

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Judge Joseph Stadtfeld, of Pittsburgh, today was sworn in as a member of the State Supreme Court.

He was a member of the Common Pleas bench of Allegheny County and was named to the higher court by Gov. Pinchot last week to fill the vacancy caused by the election of Judge James B. Drew, also of Pittsburgh, to the State Supreme Court.

Many friends of Judge Stadtfeld attended the ceremony. Justice William I. Schaeffer, of the Supreme Court, and former Chief Justice Robert Von Moschzisker were among those present when President Judge Frank M. Trexler, of the Superior Court, administered the oath.

Relatives of Judge Stadtfeld present were his son, Harold, and his cousins, Mr. and Mrs. A. Israel, Mrs. Albert Bamberger and Miss Bella Floersheim, all of this city.

Arthur P. Scully, president of the Allegheny Bar Association, presented Judge Stadtfeld's commission from the Governor in a brief address in which he commended Judge Stadtfeld's high qualifications for his place on the Superior bench.

5-Day Week Urged As Tax-Cut Program

A five-day week for all city employees in 1932 as a means of reducing taxes is urged in a letter received by Mayor Kline and City Council today from the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board.

On a five-day week basis, with salary adjustments to correspond, the city would save $1,500,000, the equivalent of a 14 per cent reduction in pay.

MISS BETTY MOORE, 20 ALBERT ANDREWS, 19

Impetuous, young Mr. Andrews, who felled one of two armed robbers with his fists, routed both with their $30 loot, when he found Miss Moore bound and his father, Manager C. N. Andrews, being bound in a chain store at 1144 Dohrman avenue, Stowe Township, today. They escaped.

Fells Thug Attacking Father; Gunmen Flee With $30

Felling one of two robbers with a blow of his fist, Albert Andrews, 19, put to flight the bandits after they had held up a chain store at 1144 Dohrman avenue, Stowe Township, today, obtaining $30.

Suspicious as he saw a stranger at the cash register as he entered the store, Andrews ran to a rear room where he found Elizabeth Moore, 20, a clerk, bound, and a robber struggling to tie the youth's father, C. N. Andrews, store manager.

The young man's right arm lashed out and the robber fell to the floor. Springing up with revolver pointed, the bandit fled and was joined by his pal in an automobile.

As the two fled the elder Andrews hurled a hammer through a window of the bandits' car. He gave police the license number of the machine, believed stolen.

HARRISBURG, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot today issued a supplemental proclamation revising the original call for the special session of the Legislature by providing definite appropriation of $2,350,000 to certain state departments.

The following additional subjects were designated by the Governor for the Legislature's consideration when it convenes here tonight at 9 o'clock:

Nearly One-Fourth of Goal Pledged at First Meeting Of Welfare Canvassers

Subscriptions of $1,350,197.81, almost one-fourth of the $6,000,000 sought to finance the "Pittsburgh Plan" for relieving unemployment during the winter months, was reported at a meeting in the William Penn Hotel today.

Seven hundred workers, representing the various divisions, reported for the first day's canvassing.

Approximately 5,000 of the workers started canvassing under direction of the Allegheny County Welfare Associatoin and the Allegheny County Emergency Association.

They were divided into three groups: The employes' division, soliciting contributions in all plants of 25 or more employes; the central division, working in the downtown district only, and the unit division, a group of 15 sub-committees working in their own communities and conducting separate campaigns under supervision of the main organization.

Following the work of these organizations, a house-to-house canvass is to start November 15.

Workers will be divided into city and county sections and assigned to districts in a canvass which the campaign leaders say will be so thorough that every person in the county, not reached in the first drive, will be solicited.

Newest Judge Loses Plea Before Police Court

Judge Thomas M. Marshall, recently elected and then appointed judge of Common Pleas Court, was overruled in Police Court today by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg.

Judge Marshall, appearing in behalf of Mrs. E. Burgess, alias Mme. Stewart, of 421 Sandusky street, charged with fortune telling, pleaded that the magistrate dispose of the case instead of holding it for court.

Said Judge Marshall:

"I have known this woman for 20 years. She is a victim of three serious accidents and is destitute. I'll admit she is guilty, but the case has extenuating circumstances. I do not ask you to discharge her, but do ask for leniency."

To which Judge Rothenberg replied:

"I have no alternative but to hold this case for court. If I were to do what you ask, fine her, I would be exceeding my power as a police magistrate. I would be haled into court and asked why I had fined the prisoner when an information had already been made."

At the conclusion Mrs. Burgess said:

Two policewomen, Mrs. Sarah McClanahan and Mrs. Ida Rickenbrode, testified the prisoner had given them readings, collecting $13 from Mrs. Rickenbrode.

117 Tech Students Freed; To Settle Riot Damage

One hundred and seventeen Carnegie Tech men were released from police custody after a Morals Court hearing on disorderly conduct charges growing out of celebration which preceded Saturday's Pitt-Tech football game.

The 117, including a few graduates, were arrested in Scoble and Boss halls, Tech dormitories, early Saturday after some of them had stoned police and firemen called to extinguish celebration bonfires in Woodlawn avenue. A policeman was injured by a thrown bottle and the Oakland Police Station was flooded when the boys tore down and broke a water main.

Police Inspector James Hoey, of the Oakland district, asked Magistrate Thomas D. Jones this morning to discharge the boys. He said they had been kept in the county jail until after the game and he believed this punishment had been sufficient "embarrassment, humiliation and disappointment." He also told the magistrate school authorities had promised to make an investigation of the affair and had agreed to pay for the damage done the Oakland station by the broken water main.

URNS TO CAPITAL

eturning to the capital today his home, Norris said the le of the Middle West were ewhat cheered by the grain e and the other rise in prices. he said there was very much satisfaction with President Hoover.

Disinclined to listen to suggestions that he enter the presidential race, Norris said:

"Any man progressively inclined can beat Mr. Hoover in the West."

He added a hope that religion would not be involved in any presidential race.

OPPOSITION TO HOOVER

Norris agreed it would be difficult to prevent the renomination of President Hoover, but said he had heard talk of a campaign to that end.

Norris was enthusiastic over the employment possibilities of a national road building program. He said:

"No legislation can be enacted that will prevent the necessity for relief for unemployment this winter. We are going to have to depend on charity, I am afraid, but we should prepare the machinery for opening employment next spring.

"Our present law requires states to match appropriations with the government on road building. It is impracticable for the states to do this now."

Prize Authoress Started Career in Hospital Cast

Mother of three boys, Mrs. Margaret Ayer Barnes, of Chicago, author of this year's Pulitzer prize novel, "Years of Grace," finds time to write while they are in school, she explained today.

Mrs. Barnes spoke before the Century Club this morning. She later was entertained at luncheon by Mrs. Louis B. Hays in her home, 1300 Beechwood boulevard.

Seeking pleasure, Mrs. Barnes began her career of authorship while in a plaster cast convalescing from a broken back, she said. She found her writings saleable. For five years she has been writing novels and plays, one of the latter, "Age of Innocence," in which Katherine Cornell starred, widely popular. Her latest novel, "Westward Passage," is soon to be published.

Of modern trends in writing she said:

"Styles in writing swing back and forth like a pendulum. At present I believe the trend is away from the extreme frankness which has characterized much modern literary work. 'Years of Grace' is, I believe, an example of this new tendency in writing."

BELL BANS DRY WIRE TAPPING

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 9.—(INS)—Wire-tapping by federal prohibition agents today appeared to have stirred up a controversy between the government and the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania. Detectives of the telephone company discovered the wire-tapping activities of the federal agents in an exclusive apartment house building here during the week-end and ordered the termination of the activities.

While asserting that wire-tapping does not violate any federal laws or constitutional rights, according to a Supreme Court ruling in 1927, Howard Jones, assistant prohibition director at Washington, declared that wire-tapping activities of the department rested with the regional heads. Leonard H. Kinnard, president of the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania, asserted that the practice was illegal in this state and declared that further offenses of this nature would result in summary action being taken.

WOMAN, 3 MEN PERILED IN BOMBING

Blast Wrecking East End Home Tosses Four From Beds; Pet Canary Saved

A woman and three men were thrown from their beds early today when an explosion, declared by police to have been caused by a bomb, blasted the 14-room dwelling of Paul P. Douglass, 5965 Alder street.

Firemen were summoned when the explosion rocked the East End district, but no blaze followed. Fire Capt. John Moroney said the loss would run into several thousand dollars.

After an examination of the premises Lieut. William Lavery said he was satisfied the explosion was the result of a dynamite bomb, although he said he had uncovered no concrete evidence to support his theory.

SENT TO HOSPITAL

The explosion occurred on the first floor, near the side entrance of the dwelling. Douglass was asleep in a first floor bedroom nearby and the concussion blew him from his bed. Police sent him to the hospital for observation. He was uninjured.

Mrs. Marie Thwaite, her son, Brooke Sipe, 19, and her nephew, Clifford Mills, were asleep on the third floor. They were not injured. The second floor was unoccupied.

Mrs. Thwaite told police:

"I was awakened by a terrific explosion. I awakened my son and my nephew. My next thought was of my canary. I believed the house burning, and I grabbed the cage and ran downstairs. I don't know who would bomb this house."

MYSTERIOUS INTRUDER

A story of an intruder whom she found in the vestibule of her home a week ago was told Lieut. Lavery by Mrs. Douglass, who returned to her home following the explosion after a visit in Baltimore.

Police also are investigating the theory that the explosion was perpetrated by a foreigner who rented the house two years ago.

The blast wrecked the side entrance. Fragments were blown to the street, and the cellar was littered with debris. Windows were shattered on the second and third floors. The entire house was moved from its foundation.

W. L. Scott, the husband, was arrested and placed in the Seminole County jail at Wewoka for questioning. The license of the car was issued in his name. The Scott home is near Holdenville, Okla.

SECRETARY STIMSON has received from Mr. Gifford's telephone laboratories a telephone transmitter and receiver making it possible for 10 to hear at the same time, every message, both ways. That ought to be useful. Witnesses are important.

If Mr. Gifford could install diplomatic telephones letting 123,000,000 Americans hear what is said and promised, on their behalf, it would be even better.

But the dear people are not trusted to that extent. What do they know about the needs of their country?

Gangster Sought In Berg Kidnaping

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Police and members of his family today professed to be still without clews in the kidnaping of Alexander Berg, millionaire fur dealer.

The Globe-Democrat said today it had learned an intensive search is being made for a former St. Louis gangster, whose name was not disclosed. The gangster, the newspaper said, is out on $50,000 bond awaiting trial for a bank robbery.

HOOVER FACES DECISION ON NEW TAXES

President Must Soon Make Up Mind on G.O.P. Policy; Grandi Visit Intervenes

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—The always exacting month before Congress convenes, during which he must determine finally the administration's attitude toward tax increases, is upon President Hoover in full force.

In addition, he must take time out from domestic matters to renew international conversations. Foreign Minister Dino Grandi, of Italy, is to arrive next Monday to take up discussions of the world problems of economics and disarmament where Premier Laval, of France, left off.

During these next four weeks, President Hoover must round out his legislative program to which he has already given much consideration. He must shape his message to Congress, teeming this year with economics. Dozens of returning senators and representatives will seek him out—some merely to pay their respects and others bearing difficulties to be confronted.

TAXES TO FORE

The next few days before the arrival of the Italian statesman is to see the tax and other fiscal questions brought to the fore at the White House. Only the Armistice Day celebration, as a part of which he may speak, is to break to any extent Mr. Hoover's application to questions for submission to Congress.

Before the President are various proposals from members of his own party for increasing revenues, some calling for sales taxes. He himself has been represented as feeling the income tax laws need readjusting.

During the first four months of the fiscal year, revenues have shown a sharp decline with a consequent rise in the Federal deficit. This now totals over $661,000,000. A continuance at this rate would bring a deficiency of nearly $2,000,000,000 by next July.

BUDGET SLICED

Last week the President announced a slice of $350,000,000 from 1933 budget estimates for the government departments, but even with these a gross budget of around $3,632,000,000 is probable.

He indicated some time ago that his final decision upon the tax question would be delayed until just before Congress convenes to permit as much study as possible of income receipts.

KENDALL, BECK FIGHT TAXES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—(INS.)—A bitter attack upon the 50-50 federal-state appropriation laws emerged today as a factor in congressional action upon President Hoover's drastic economy program.

Representatives of big Eastern states, which furnish most of the cash for federal good roads aid, the maternity act and other similar agencies are preparing to weed out many of the laws. Among those opposed to the present laws are Representatives Beck and Kendall (Reps.), of Pennsylvania, a big income-tax paying state.

Kendall declared he would fight for discontinuance of the enormous federal appropriations for highways.

Grandi Wears Down Ship Promenaders

S. S. CONTE GRANDE, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Foreign Minister Dino Grandi walked seven miles around the deck and wore down two companions today as the liner which is bearing him to America steamed along the south coast of Spain in a smooth sea.

He and Signora Grandi watched a lifebelt drill of third-class passengers. The vessel is making up some of the time lost in yesterday's heavy weather, and the Grandis hope to get a good look at the Rock of Gibraltar today.

Jugoslavia Holds General Election

BELGRADE, Jugoslavia, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—A light vote was cast yesterday in Jugoslavia's general election, which will give the country its first parliament since the constitution was abrogated in 1929.

Rain and the fact that only the government's candidates were eligible probably kept many of the voters away from the polls, for it was estimated that only 50 per cent of the qualified electors participated, as compared with 73 per cent in the last election in 1927. No disorders were reported.

Won't Take Cod Liver Oil, Zoo Lion Gets 'Sunshine'

The lion in Highland Park Zoo won't take cod liver oil—so he's going to get a dose of artificial sunlight.

At least that's what Councilman John M. Phillips, chairman of the Committee on Parks and Libraries, said today. Phillips said he looks with favor on the offer of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company to place ultra-violet lamps around the zoo cages in an effort to relieve the ailments of the lion, sadly incapacitated by rickets, and other animals.

The lion, Councilman Phillips revealed, simply will not take cod liver oil no matter how thoroughly his keepers explain its benefits.

Phillips said he would confer with Westinghouse officials, probably in time to place the matter of the lion and the lights before the next meeting of Council.

'CRUSOES' FETED IN NEW YORK, TELL OF HARDSHIPS

3 CASTAWAYS REPLY TO SKEPTICS

Marooned in South Seas, They Describe Battle for Life on Lonely Island

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Three modern Robinson Crusoes came back to civilization today and were treated to an extra large dose of it.

The three were Elmer Pallister, 58, of San Diego, Cal., Gordon Brawner, 21, of Springfield, Ill., and Paul Stachwick, 18, of Colorado.

Sound movie men, newspaper reporters, photographers and magazine agents rode down the bay to meet them on the S.S. Virginia from Panama, and at least one vaudeville agent came all the way from Balboa with them.

FOUND ON ISLAND

The three men recently were rescued from the island of Cocos, 550 miles southwest of Balboa, where they had been living the life of castaways for six months and 11 days. They sought the shelter of the island when their 26-foot yawl with which they had put out from San Diego last April, sprang a leak. While trying to beach the boat it was wrecked and they were left to shift as best they could on the lonely island.

All three had closely clipped hair. They expressed delight at their return and told some of their experiences after considerable argument between reporters and their "agent."

Brawner did the talking. He said they salvaged five guns, three of them pistols and two rifles, a mattress for each one of them and some rice, flour and sugar. The latter staples were spoiled by rain except for a small bit of flour and they used a spoonful at a time.

Three of the pistols and one rifle were soon put out of commission, leaving only one gun for which they had 50 cartridges.

SAILOR BUYS GUN

The gun was sold to a sailor on the gunboat Sacramento which rescued the castaways after their presence on the island had been discovered by Julius Fleischmann, who was on a yacht cruise to the South Seas.

The men also had a tin of matches, some string and fish hooks. They lived on cocoanuts, wild boar and fruit. They said they found three old shacks on the island and much evidence of treasure digging.

They wore no clothes, partly, Brawner said, because their clothing rotted and principally because it rained.

For many days they saw no sun and all three hovered closely about the fire.

They had salvaged a deck of cards, but played with them only a few days.

Brawner, asked if they had gotten on each other's nerves, said:

"Yes—and plenty."

GANG LEADER DIES IN PEACE

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—(INS.)—Jim Genna, former gang chieftain whose three brothers were slain early in Chicago's alcoholic wars, was dead today of heart disease.

Genna, whose bloody war for control of the bootlegging industry rocked the city, was the first of the Genna clan to die without gang violence. Three of his family died by gangland bullets in retaliation for the murder of Dion O'Banion, North Side gang czar.

The man who once ruled one of Chicago's most powerful gangs, died peacefully last night at his home in Calumet City, a suburb, where he had lived in seclusion.

Following the decimation of his family Genna fled to Italy where he was convicted of stealing the holy jewels of the Madona Di Trapani in 1925. After spending four years on the rock pile at Trapani prison he returned here in 1929 and went into seclusion.

5 DIE IN CRASH OF CAR, TRUCK

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Five persons—four from one family—were killed outright and two others seriously injured today in a collision between a truck and a passenger automobile on Ridge pike about a mile south of here. A baby born to one of the injured women after the accident died in a hospital.

The dead were Peter Polinik, 50; his wife, Anna, 49; their two children, Harry, 17; Susanna, 4, and a son-in-law, Stephen Lucash, 17, all of Edgewater, N. J.

All were passengers in an automobile driven by George Roden, 22, Union City. Roden and his wife, Ann, 22, a daughter of the Polinkis, were brought to the Montgomery County Hospital where Mrs. Roden gave birth to the baby which died a half hour later.

Physicians said the woman had a fractured skull and other injuries which may prove fatal. Roden's injuries were less serious.

Mackey Warns Rich In Charity Appeal

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Mayor Harry A. Mackey in a radio talk yesterday warned Philadelphia's wealthy citizens that failure to contribute heavily to the $9,000,0000 united charity drive "might imperil your fortunes."

His address was one of many made from the pulpit and in meetings which preceded opening of the drive today.

CROWD STORMS COURT TO SEE MRS. JUDD

'Tiger Woman' Near Collapse At Preliminary Hearing In Two Trunk Murders

International News Service.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Nov. 9.—Mrs. Ruth Judd, pallid "tiger woman of Phoenix," went on preliminary trial today on two complaints charging her with the "trunk" murders of her friends, Hedwig Samuelson, invalid school teacher, and Agnes Leroi, robust nurse.

A crowd of 500 men and women stormed the door of Justice of the Peace C. E. Ice's courtroom in an attempt to occupy the scant 100 seats during the hearing.

WITNESSES NAMED

Just before Judge Ice took the bench, the prosecution issued a list of witnesses for the hearing. The witness list had been kept secret until the hearing opened.

The state's witnesses were H. W. Grimm, Mrs. Judd's landlord; Evelyn Nace, a nurse; A. W. Butcher, baggageman; Dr. J. D. Maudlin, county physician; Richard Schwartz, driver of a transport company truck; Dr. John A. Lentz, Dr. Victory Randolph, Pearl Wagoner and Beverly D. Stallings, baggageman.

Mrs. Judd was led into the courtroom by Mrs. Lon Jordan, jail matron.

WEAK AND SHAKY

She was weak and shaky and sat with her eyes fastened on her twitching hands.

When the crowd strained the hinges of the courtroom door, Judge Ice ordered the excess crowd to leave the courthouse and clear the corridors.

Mrs. Judd was a striking picture in her long black velvet dress and black fox fur. Her face, heavily lined, was made even more pallid by contrast with her somber dress.

'SLIPPER' FLIER SETS RECORD

PORT DARWIN, Australia, Nov. 9.—(INS.)—Still wearing the carpet slippers he donned upon his takeoff from Lympne Aerodrome near London, C. A. Butler, British airman, stepped out of his tiny plane today, establishing a new record of 9 days 1 hour and 53 minutes for a flight from England to Australia.

Butler made his flight in a monoplane less than 20 feet in length and with a wing-spread of only 18 feet, believed to be the smallest craft in the world. He had an alarm clock built into the cockpit to prevent him from oversleeping during his stopovers.

The airman left Lympne only a few hours after Miss Peggy Salaman, 19-year-old London debutante, had taken off on her successful record-breaking flight from England to Cape Town. Butler said he wore his carpet slippers because they were warm and comfortable and because he "didn't expect to have to walk, anyhow."

Vandergrift Grid Player Hurt, Dies

VANDERGRIFT, Pa., Nov. 9.—After riding home from a football game in which he played at Arnold yesterday, Louis Di Sabato, 17, a senior of Vandergrift High School, became unconscious and died in a few hours, presumably from concussion of the brain.

The youth played on the line for the Vandergrift "Black Paws" against the Arnold "Black Hawks." He was struck on the nose and again on the head, but continued in the game. While en route home he became ill. After going to bed at home, he was telling his brother that he had been hurt when he lapsed into unconsciousness.

Dreiser Eats With Mine Waifs in Soup Kitchen

PINEVILLE, Ky., Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Laden with information of conditions in the Harlan and Bell counties coal fields of Eastern Kentucky, Theodore Dreiser, novelist, and his committee separated into two groups today and ended their visit during which they held mass meetings and interviewed miners throughout the mountains.

The committee concluded its inquiry yesterday with a mass meeting at Wallins Creek, a small mining community. The author ate and conversed with a group of children in a miners' soup kitchen prior to the meeting.

One group, headed by Dreiser, planned to return to New York and prepare a report which they said will be made public within 10 days. Copies of the report will be given to Gov. Flem D. Sampson, of Kentucky, the Kentucky Bar Association, the press, and Senator Norris, who recently was asked by Dreiser to investigate the labor situation in the coal fields.

The second group planned to go to Mt. Sterling and Winchester to interview miners awaiting trial on charges growing out of labor disorders. The cases were transferred from Harlan County on change of venue.

Meanwhile, a separate investigation was under way by Judge Smith Hays, of Winchester, and A. A. Bablitz, of Lexington, appointed by Gov. Sampson to visit the coal fields and report directly to him. Two officers of the Kentucky National Guard who served as observers during the visit of Dreiser's committee also were expected to make a report to the Governor.

SUSPECT HELD FOR THREATS TO BORAH

Foiled in Office Entrance, Intruder Goes to Home; Senator Scouts Danger

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Capitol police are holding for mental observation a man giving his name as John F. Fraser, alleged to have threatened Senator Borah, of Idaho.

At his residence, however, the Senator scouted the reports and said his life "was never in danger."

Fraser, who described himself as a broker, was taken to Gallinger Hospital for the Insane, for observation, after his arrest in the House Office Building.

Police were told the man, after futile efforts to see the Senator at his office, had gone to the Borah apartment, on Connecticut avenue, Wednesday night, and had been ejected.

The Senator's secretary said Fraser had then written the Senator a "very threatening" letter.

Recognizing the man for a "crank," the secretary said, she had not permitted him to see the Senator, though he called several days.

Sleuths See 100 Burglaries Solved by Arrest of Gang in East End Raid

Solution of 100 house robberies in the city was believed near today, police said, with the arrest of seven persons, one of whom detectives described as a crook of international fame.

Acting on a tip that the gang had rented a furnished house at 6435 Marchand street, Lieut. Edward O'Rourke and a squad of detectives, armed with a machine gun and shot guns, surrounded the house early today and laid in wait for five hours for the "mob" to arrive. When the suspects entered the house the sleuths took them into custody.

HELD WITHOUT BAIL

Robert Considine, 50, who, detectives said, served terms in penal institutions of England, France and South Africa, and whose alleged criminal record is widely known in this and other countries, was held as the leader of the gang. He and Agnes Thomas, 21, of Export; her brother, Stanley Thomas, 24; Philip Moran, 30; William Cullen, 40; Marie Dixon, 35, of Wheeling and Raymond J. Miller, 39, of 2015 Gironda street, were committed to jail without bail when arraigned before Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in the Central Police Court. Detectives testified they found two guns when they searched the suspects and recovered jewelry which they believed had been stolen here. The house was used as a "hideout" and loot sent to a "fence" in Buffalo, the detectives said.

SHUNS REPORTERS

Considine claimed to be the husband of May Churchill, better konwn to police as "Chicago May," who died two years ago in Chicago. Considine, author of many prison stories, at the hearing said:

"I'll not be interviewed by newspapermen, nor will I say anything for publication. I'll talk when the proper time comes and will be my own attorney."

Lieut. O'Rourke was accompanied by Detectives Joseph Leith, James Swearingen, Harry Foster and George Brubach, who testified the gang had rented the house six months ago. The Thomas woman acted as a "maid," the detectives said.

FRANKLIN, Pa., Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Mrs. E. E. Mix, 68, of Dubois, Pa., the mother of Tom Mix, motion picture and circus cowboy, received cuts and bruises yesterday when an automobile overturned on the Lakes to Sea Highway at Salina, eight miles east of this city. Last Spring Mrs. Mix was in a hospital three weeks from injuries incurred in an automobile accident on Sage Run road.

In yesterday's accident a car driven by Frank Kuhn, Dubois, in which Mrs. Mix was riding, swung into a culvert and overturned to avoid hitting another machine.

Donor of $5,000,000 Art Collection Dies Broke

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—John Gellatly, 78, who in 1929 gave to the nation an art collection then valued at $5,000,000, died here yesterday of pneumonia, so poor his widow said she would have to borrow money to pay his funeral expenses.

Gellatly spent much of his life gathering the art collection which was accepted by Congress in 1929 for the national gallery of the Smithsonian Institution.

His widow, Mrs. Charlyne Whitely Gellatly, a granddaughter of the late Senator Richard H. Whitely, of Georgia, said she would appeal to Congress to reject the collection.

She said her husband gave away his fortune in the form of art in the hope of becoming known as a philanthropist.

Mrs. Gellatly said when she married Gellatly in September, 1929, she did not know he already had offered his art collection to the government.

Gellatly was haled into court last September for non-payment of his wife's rent.

PINCHOT SEEKS NEW FUNDS FOR UNEMPLOYED

state-owned medical and surgical hospitals.

3. An additional appropriation in the amount of $100,000 to the Department of Military Affairs for the use of the state veterans commission.

4. Making new appropriations to the Governor or any department, board or commission of the state government, or increasing appropriations heretofore made to them, to enable additional projects to be undertaken which will give work to the unemployed and to enable newly-imposed taxes to be collected. This subject is a modification of the eighth subject in the original call and is added in order that legislation may be enacted under either of them as may be deemed wise.

The Governor said that 19 measures, covering all points of his original proclamation and today's supplementary proclamation, will be introduced at tonight's opening session. Some of these will be introduced in the House, some in the Senate and some in both Houses.

POINT MODIFIED

The fourth point in today's supplementary proclamation modifies the eighth point in the original proclamation made public last Monday, which provided for changes to the 1931 appropriation act to permit the undertaking of additional construction projects to give work to the unemployed.

The Governor's original program briefly provided for creation of a state commission on employment relief. Authorization for municipalities to make emergency loans for unemployment relief in 1932, a constitutional amendment to permit the state to borrow money to repay contributors and half of the municipalities loans, a bond issue to cover these payments, permit municipalities to levy taxes for unemployment relief, permit local authorities to postpone tax sales, permit the State Highway Department to improve roads and streets not on the state highways system, revision of the state's budget to permit undertaking of additional construction projects, an appropriation to cover the cost of the extra session, cooperation with other states in rehabilitating the bituminous coal mining industry, an emergency 2 cents a gallon tax on gasoline for two years, a tax on cigarets, billboards and outdoor advertising, transfer of money from the general fund to the motor license fund for road construction work and amendment of the Pymatuning Dam $1,500,000 appropriation to permit additional construction work at the dam site.

CO-OPERATION SEEN

While the members of the General Assembly for the most part were unwilling to commit themselves on the Governor's program until they have had time to study his bills, there was an attitude of eagerness to co-operate on anything which will be for the best interests of the state.

While the House will be confronted solely with unemployment relief measures, the Senate in addition will act on all appointments made by the Governor since the adjournment of the Legislature on May 28, except those of Justices of the Peace and Superior Court Judge Joseph Stadtfeld, Pittsburgh.

The Governor's address, outlining his relief program, will be made to a joint session of the General Assembly tomorrow at noon and it is expected that adjournment for the week will be taken soon thereafter.

Hagmaier Opposed To 5-Cent Gas Levy

HARRISBURG, Nov. 9.—Opposition to Gov. Pinchot's proposal to increase the gasoline tax by 2 cents for two years was expressed today by Representative Louis W. Hagmaier, of Aspinwall, upon his arrival for the special legislative session.

Hagmaier is one of the Pinchot followers in the Allegheny delegation.

A bill imposing a one-cent additional tax on gasoline, the revenue of which is to be solely devoted to payment of wages, is to be introduced by Representative James T. Heffran, Washington. Heffran's bill allocates the additional money to be expended for improving roads on the township system in proportion to mileage in each county.

Labor Will Demand State Income Tax

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—A State Labor Federation leader said yesterday the federation will sponsor a bill to levy a 5 per cent income tax for unemployment relief in the special legislative session which opens today. Joseph Richie, American Federation of Labor organizer and member of the legislative committee of the state federation, disclosed the plan at a meeting of the Central Labor Union.

The 5 per cent tax would be levied on all incomes, but the bill provides for a rebate of $500 for "prompt payment." This provision would exempt incomes under $5,000, Richie said, and yet comply with provisions of the state Constitution which forbid a graduated income tax.

FREE OF CLOSET PRISON, LITTLE GIRL HAPPY

Finds New Joy in Food and Toys in Hospital Ward; Parents' Hearing Tuesday

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—A wan, little 13-year-old girl has the first playmate she can remember, and toys and plenty to eat.

She is Edith Riley, whose parents are charged with imprisoning her in a windowless closet for almost the last quarter of her life.

Now she is in the children's ward of a municipal hospital. A red-headed fellow patient is the first playmate she recalls having, she shyly informs a questioner. Smiling strangers gaze down at her among the dolls and toys sympathetic folk her own age have sent. And as she finishes a meal of goodies the like of which she did not know existed, she pats her stomach and sighs happily.

It is a new life for her.

Her father and stepmother, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Newton Riley, are in another section of the city. Things have changed for them, too, since last week. Under $2,500 bond they await the decision of the grand jury whether they kept the little girl in the closet, beat her and through other abuse arrested her development. Originally scheduled for today, their hearing was delayed until tomorrow because of the crowded grand jury calendar.

They contend she was placed in the closet only when they had to leave her alone; that she always had been abnormal; and that they kept her home because they believed she would be cared for better than in an institution.

The Secretary showed considerable reticence about discussing the Manchurian situation.

He said he had studied carefully Japan's note to the League of Nations refusing to evacuate Manchuria by November 16 but had no comment.

Meanwhile, the State Department disclosed that four American missionaries at Tsitsihar, near the zone of Sino-Japanese hostilities in Northern Manchuria, have been requested by American consular authorities to withdraw to Harbin "in case the situation becomes dangerous."

They are Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Vos, Princeton, N. J., Miss Reba Huston, Blanchard, Ia., and Miss Lillian McCracken, Beaver County, Pennsylvania.

Woman Missionary Safe, Cablegram States

Miss Lillian L. McCracken, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. McCracken, of 3403 Evans avenue, Beaver Falls, is serving her second missionary trip in China for the Reformed Presbyterian Church. Her first trip, which occupied seven years, placed her in the war-torn Southern China. After a furlough in America, she returned in October, 1930, and was placed at the head of a group in Manchuria on account of her knowledge of the Chinese language and customs.

In addition to her parents she has a sister, Miss Mae McCracken, and two brothers, Wyllie and John McCracken, residing in Beaver Falls. The family was notified in a cablegram two weeks ago that she was well.

MENACE POLICE STATION

The Tientsin disorders started Sunday night when a rebel army under Gen. Shih Yu-San attempted to seize the Tientsin Police Station and other governmental offices controlled by Mayor Chang Hsueh-Ming, a brother of Marshal Chang Hsueuh-Liang, the governor of Manchuria.

Although the rebels later advanced on the Japanese concession, the Tientsin mayor charged the Chinese were armed by the Japanese and hired to start a demonstration as an opening wedge for the Japanese military to take control of Tientsin.

EX-EMPEROR PERILED

In Chinese circles here the Tientsin outbreak was connected with an attempt previously made against the life of Henry Pu-Yi, deposed Emperor of China.

Bombs were sent to the ex-Emperor, but were discovered before they exploded. Japanese, who have Pu-Yi under their protection, accused Chinese of plotting against the ex-Emperor's life, while Chinese here retaliated with the charge the Japanese arranged the "bomb scare" to frighten Pu-Yi into leaving Tientsin to become head of an independent government in Manchuria.

Japan May Withdraw From Nations League

TOKIO, Nov. 9.—(INS.)—Responsible Japanese officials are discussing the possible withdrawal of Japan from the League of Nations as a result of the attitude taken by the League Council in the Manchurian crisis, the Newspaper Jiji Shimpo declared editorially today.

It was stated that Japanese officials believe that "impossible terms" have been proposed to Japan by the League following repeated agitation by China, and that the Tokio government does not require the services of the League in handling the Manchurian question.

n Slain in Fight, 2 Held for Inquiry

Two Negroes are under arrest today in connection with the fatal shooting Saturday night of Charles Davis, Negro, of 133 Webster street. The shooting occurred, according to police, when William Pitman, angered because Davis interfered in a quarrel between Pitman and his wife, fired several shots, one of which entered Davis' head. The shooting occurred in Penn avenue, near Twenty-ninth street.

Later police took William Jackson, Negro, of 3033 Penn avenue, into custody. Jackson, according to police, struck Davis with an iron pipe before the shots were fired.

ALL IN A DAY

By MARK HELLINGER

THAT MYSTERIOUS PERSONALITY who is famed in story and legend as the Broadway Spender has vanished into the past. Where he has gone and why he has gone are not for me to say. The fact remains that the biggest spenders on Broadway today would have been laughed at as complete pikers in the days of yesteryear.

Depression or no depression, there are still plenty of millionaires in this town and the reason for this sudden disappearance of money wasters will always be a mystery to me. One can't very well blame prohibition, because there are more saloons in New York today than there were before that celebrated law went into so-called effect. The modern Broadway has just as many girls, just as much liquor after a fashion and many more attractions than in years gone by. What, then, has happened to the spenders?

The names of many of these moneyed gentlemen have gone down in the pages of Broadway history. There were, for instance, Death Valley Scotty, who tried to spend a million dollars in a day and failed to come anywhere near the mark; Caesar Young, James Hazen Hyde, the society spender; Daniel G. Reid, the tin plate king; Diamond Jim Brady; Harry Lehr, the fashion plate; John W. (Bet a Million) Gates, Circular Joe Vendig, Coal Oil Johnny and hundreds of others—spenders all.

These were names to conjure with in days gone by. Have you heard any such recently? Fighters like Young Corbett and Kid McCoy threw their money about like water some 20 years ago. By any stretch of the imagination can you visualize the present Gene Tunney doing anything along these lines?

A typical example is brought up to the present in the person of Harry K. Thaw. The stories that surround Thaw's early days on Broadway are many and varied—and the money he has flung to the wind must run into the millions. But that was more than [illegible] years ago.

Of [illegible] Thaw has got into the habit of coming to New York again. Wildly exaggerated stories of things he does and parties he holds are told about him. And all of them are laughable to those in the know.

I, for instance, spent two days on Broadway with Harry K. Thaw not so long ago. During that time, I sat with him in two of the most expensive cabarets in town and was also along when he vigorously applauded a girl show. Being thus qualified to judge, I will personally guarantee that Thaw did not spend more than $100 on those three occasions. If, indeed, he plunged to that extent.

He finally decided to go back to Pittsburgh and invited me to ride with him in a cab to the Pennsylvania Station. Arriving there, the meter registered 50 cents. Here, I thought is where Thaw will show the generosity of old. He's leaving New York and this driver will probably get a 10-spot. Even 50, perhaps.

Thaw hopped out of the cab and walked rapidly a way. I paid the bill . . .

Accompanied by three friends, I sat the other night in a beautifully appointed drinking establishment that is noted for its society patronage. Presently two men walked in, both members of the Social Register group. And both possessing names that are known throughout the nation.

Notwithstanding the lack of an invitation, both of these men soon sat themselves at our table and began to talk with unquestionable enthusiasm of their wealth and station in life.

A trifle bored, I took it upon myself to turn the conversation. I spoke of present day liquor, its quantity and its quality, as the case may be. But these two gentlemen of noble caste were not to be outdone. No matter what I said, they had one better.

Deliberately, and making certain that not one drop was spilled, this young millionaire pushed his flask in turn under the nose of each member of our party. At each thrust he suggested that we inhale deeply.

"There," he remarked triumphantly after the four of us had smelled his flask, "now you have an idea what real liquor is like."

And, without offering one of us a drink, he calmly put the flask back in his pocket.

On another recent occasion I happened to be in the company of one of those birds who is forever boasting about the money he has and the cost of everything he buys.

We were sitting in a cafe, and he had me in such a spot that I couldn't move away at the moment without offending.

"The depression doesn't apply to a man like me," he gloated. "I'm a man who will always be able to spend anything I wish. You see this suit? Cost me $200. Yes, sir. But that's the way I've always done things—and that's how I expect to go on."

I finally succeeded in getting up. But he kept talking as I edged away.

"I don't mind a little publicity," he was saying. "If you ever want to say a few words about me in your paper, Mr. Hellinger, I have no objections whatsoever."

As I walked through the door, I met the waiter who had been serving at the talker's table.

"You're a lucky guy to have that man for a customer," I observed. "He must hand you plenty."

"That's what you think," he muttered. "As long as I've been working in this place, he's the only customer who fell below a dollar tip. His limit is a quarter!"

That, then, is the stuff of which the modern Broadway spendthrifts are made.

The spenders today are the bootleggers and actors who are temporarily sitting in the lap of success. But there are no more $50,000 dinners and very few treats for the crowd. That mythical figure, the Broadway Spender, has been supplanted by the hard-boiled egg.

Same Players As Appeared In Original Picture Being Lined Up

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 9.

Early in 1932 Will Rogers is going to do a sequel to "They Had to See Paris," his first talking picture.

Homer Croy has been engaged by Fox to weave his characters into another story, and, of course, the same players will be engaged. You'll recall Rogers was the Oklahoma oil millionaire in this film. Irene Rich played his wife, Marguerite Churchill, his daughter, and Rex Bell his son. If any of the cast is not available, that character can be eliminated from the sequel.

Will Rogers

Another story planned for Rogers is "David Harum." I imagine it will follow the Croy story.

Incidentally, Fox is one of the few studios which has had success with sequels. The Flagg-Quirt series and the "Cisco Kid" stories all have made money.

LATEST GOSSIP

Lily Damita says her boy-friend, Fred Smith, wants her to quit pictures and live in New York. Exclaims Lily: "Can you imagine me going to bridge parties?" . . . Miriam Hopkins has rented Greta Garbo's home in Beverly Hills. Privacy-loving Greta moved down the street when the public got onto her address and hung around to watch her come in and out of the house . . . Mitzi Green will leave on a vaudeville tour in the middle of December when her Paramount contract runs out. The studio is not renewing. Mitzi is at that awkward age, you know . . . Marguerite Churchill hasn't been with Fox for three weeks . . . It was Will Rogers who said: "If the Motion Picture Academy really wanted a tough job, they should have picked the worst picture of the year." . . . And the height of something or other is the woman who stood before the microphone at the R-K-O studio and doubled for two canary birds.

Lily Damita

IN THE NEWS

Another well-known player in Paramount's long-delayed "No One Man" will be Paul Lukas. He plays the doctor in the Rupert Hughes story. Ricardo Cortez has been borrowed from Radio for the male lead, and Carole Lombard will be the heroine.

Lloyd Corrigan directs.

Star Role

Helen Hayes has the star role in "The Good Fairy," second of Professional Players' dramas, which comes next week to the Alvin.

Ah, Mystery Runs Wild In Film

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"A Dangerous Affair," current film in the Warner, is another of those mystery melodramas with a haunted house complex. This type of entertainment comes from Hollywood every once in a while—whenever enough cobwebs accumulate in any given spot.

Jack Holt and Ralph Graves are co-featured. These two fellows make quite an interesting screen team and even in the hokum atmosphere of their haunted house they register okay. Mr. Holt has the role of a police lieutenant and Mr. Graves is a newspaper reporter.

Mr. Graves finds things dull in his neighborhood and he decides to create a little excitement. But he gets more of it than he bargained for. Clutching hands clutch and murder is done. A jewel thief is on the loose, too, and what a time he has snatching necklaces from the girls.

Supporting players include Sally Blane, Susan Fleming, Blanche Frederici, Edward Brophy, De Witt Jennings and Tyler Brooke.

If you like spooks and doors that bang for no special reason, the picture should please you.

Guild Player

Zita Johann is featured in "Tomorrow and Tomorrow," the Theater Guild production which will be seen in the Nixon next week.

HOOVER AWAITS NAVY APOLOGY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—(INS.)—The White House settled back for a period of quiet and waiting today, following the report of President Hoover's "vindication committee" which found the President not within the category of "abysmal ignorance," or a "congenital pacifist" as charged by William Howard Gardiner, president of the Navy League. Gardiner had charged Mr. Hoover with attempting to "restrict, to reduce and to starve the United States Navy."

Despite the Saturday "not guilty" verdict of the five men named by the President to investigate the Navy League charges, the expected or hoped for apology had not been announced today, and the silence maintained in Navy League quarters indicated the apology was not yet in the process of composition.

The President's body of five men was unanimous in reaching its findings and reporting in direct opposition to the charges levelled in Gardiner's pamphlet. The eight members of the Navy League executive committee who gathered last week, after the President demanded a retraction, voted seven to one to stand by the League's president. The single dissenting vote was that of Henry Breckinridge, former president of the League, who dissociated himself from Gardiner's broadside, chiefly because of the language.

Buhl Housing Topic Of Real Estate Men

The plan of the Buhl Foundation in building a community of 300 houses to assist in providing housing at fair rentals will be outlined by Charles F. Washington, where the community is to be located.

MUSIC

Society and Elsa Alsen Pittsburgh Symphony

SYRIA MOSQUE

PROGRAM.

Classical Symphony ... Prokofieff
Symphonic Poem "September" .... Modarelli
Unfinished Symphony ... Schubert
Rezia's Air from Oberon ... Weber
Polonaise, from Eugene Onegin .... Tschaikowsky

The Pittsburgh Symphony Society, hale and hearty, entered its sixth season last night and gave its opening concert in Syria Mosque under the baton of Antonio Modarelli. There was a quieter audience than usual, and a smaller one than heretofore. The cause is not hard to find, but a civic enterprise such as our orchestra must not perish no matter how trying the times.

Mr. Lissfelt

It was a most unusual and excellently chosen program. Prokofieff is in the advance guard of contemporary composers, a man acquainted with the past, and who holds his tongue in his cheek when he thinks of the present. His symphony is built on classic forms reduced to miniature, and he lets his instruments play their capricious conceits with most charming abandon. His music wants a virtuoso orchestra.

Another novelty was Modarelli's own tone poem "September." This young composer seems more interested in how his instruments can speak than what they say. His material is sparse and fragmentary in development, therefore more adaptable as incidental music to a drama, than in a unified form as the tone poem. He is certainly not without a sense of color and mood, and the funeral march episode, also the long peasant-like melody of the flute were good interludes. The music has to do with the Russian uprising; the undercurrent of dark and tense feeling was most accurately suggested in his rhythms.

Schubert's Unfinished Symphony must have been relief for most of the audience. It is nice music for a Sunday evening. The Polonaise was a grand flourish.

Elsa Alsen, dramatic soprano, gave two of the most trying airs of the entire operatic repertory. Her voice is well known in Pittsburgh from a notable performance of "Tristan" and her recital singing, and she was more than satisfying again last night. The orchestra overwhelmed her beautiful nuances during the "Liebestod," but, including all the Bayreuth gestures, she gave a traditional reading. The tremendous Ocean aria from "Oberon" was far more colorful and required all the skill of both vocalist and musician. As encore she sang Brunnhilde's Walkyrie Cry, as thrilling a bit of dramatic singing as Pittsburgh has heard in many a day. The audience, as first alarmed at her gesturing, responded to her high C with a glorious ovation.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

(Copyright, 1931, Daily Mirror, Inc.)

Things I Gnever Gnew Till Gnow

(With thanks to all the readers who wrote them.)

That Customs inspectors and guards of the Port of N. Y. pass all pistols of American make without query as to whether the owner is licensed, and that the same holds true even if the possessor of firearms be a known criminal. Nor do they tip off the police, because "It's none of our business. We're only here to see that duties are paid!"

That some radio crooners receive bigger salaries than the presidents of the firms that hire them. (Which is as it should be!)

That the Long Island Railroad carries more passengers than any other railroad in the world.

That there are 200,000 old maids in N. Y. (Poor things.)

That among other ironies, list the fact that Owen Crosby, the cowboy who was shot and killed by a cop, was not a contestant in the rodeo. He came to the town merely to be near his pals in it.

That Trinity Church hasn't been moved an inch since it was built. But once it was one block from the Hudson. Now it's three!

That the statue of Wm. H. Seward in Madison Sq. is not true to form, and no pun intended. Seward is pictured "all legs—little head," but his best pals assert he was "all head—little legs!"

That New York City has six Arabian newspapers.

That the Metropolitan Museum of Art takes especial pride in a picture of a piece of cheese and two crackers!

That President Hayes, elected once, took oath of office twice.

That Shakespeare mentioned wisecrackers and stifled them, too, with: "What cracker is this that deafs our ears with this abundance of superfluous breath?" (Gosh, there's a broadcast to prepare, yet!)

That business is good in Ireland and Holland.

That plain chalk, ground to a powder and gulped down with water, is good for acidosis. And one of the better baby doctors will tell you (when your baby has a sick stomach) to give it a lollypop!

That the heart is a double organ—it has two halves!

That two-thirds of all white children born in Potosi, Bolivia, die within a few hours. Elevation is too high.

That only a wardrobe union member may dress a star!

That Hamlet, "the mad Dane," was perfectly sane! (Oh, yeah? Then look up Rolfe's "Hamlet" Notes, Act II, 533).

That despite the depression and the cotton sitch-ee-ay-shun, more Southerners are buying this year than last year.

That U. A. Sanabria, whose giant television apparatus sets him at the head of the game, is but 25 years old. Bravo!

That Maj. Gen. Worth, Mexican War hero, lies buried in the very midst of one of New York's busiest traffic sectors—at the junction of 5th Ave., B'way and 25th St. And that N. Y., which honored him in 1857 with a monument 5 feet high, now remembers him with two 5c flags!

That calories represent units of heat which warm your body.

That a scholar is a pupil but a pupil is not a scholar. (You'll learn, you'll learn. Even I ate my first banana skin and all!)

That there are 200 different ways of spelling Robert.

That Booth Tarkington took to writing after Life, the mag, rejected 31 contributed cartoons. And he earned $22.50 the first five years of his writing career. (Yeh, yeh. The so-called good old days.)

That the English House of Parliament members get no pay.

That another old Spanish custom forbids the ruler to play cards with other than crowned heads. Alfonso thought differently.

That the first auto company used a one-inch ad!

That the north wall of our City Hall building has a rough finish because at the time it was built the rest of the island above City Hall was one huge back yard, and the locals never dreamed that their colony would expand beyond the building. I remember the day well.

That "balcony" until 1820 was accented on the 2d syllable.

That if a Turkoman's squaw asks him permission to go out, and he chirps, "Go," without adding, "Come back again," they are divorced.

That Vermont was the first state to abolish slavery, in 1800, before she had joined the Union. (Good old Vermont!)

That Cleopatra swallowed one pearl valued at $400,000.

That seven was frequently used as a mystical number in many of the ancient countries as well as in the Bible.

That Walter is a German name, meaning conqueror. (Ahem!)

That Christopher Smart (1722-1771) wrote the "Song of David," his finest work, on the wall of a lunatic asylum where he was confined.

And that most matches are made in Scandinavia—although a lot of dopes think they are made in Heaven.

Sigma Xi Lecture Series Opens Nov. 18

The first of three lectures on "The Culture of Prehistoric Man" to be given under the auspices of the University of Pittsburgh chapter of the Society of the Sigma Xi, will be presented November 18 in the auditorium of the Henry Clay Frick Teachers Training School. The first lecture will be given by Dr. Andrey Avinoff, of Carnegie Museum. The other lectures will be given January 27 and March 16, by Dr. Melville Jean Herskovits, of Northwestern University, and Nels Christian Nelson, of New York.

HOSPITAL RADIO SYSTEM -:- Installation Here To Cost $30,000 -:- JACK LITTLE

We Now Present

By Darrell V. Martin
Radio Editor

WHEN THAT MUCH heralded radio system is installed in the new Allegheny General Hospital, it will be possible for the superintendent to page anyone anywhere in the building by simply speaking into a microphone in his office . . . patients will have their choice of two radio programs served through the newly invented radio pillow . . the system is to cost about $30,000 . . .

Darrell V. Martin

F. C. Millard, who erected WPDU for the Pittsburgh Police Department, has charge of the hospital installation . . . KDKA has forwarded to Jimmy Joy at St. Paul a pair of snowshoes sent Joy by Ralph Arms, a clerk in a Hudson Bay trading post near the Arctic Circle . . . Little Jack Little joins Guy Lombardo, WJAS at 10 o'clock, for his first CBS program tonight.

Question a Day:

How long have "Jack and Tony" been on KQV? Please tell us something about them.—The Girls, Homestead Hospital.

Answer—Jack and Tony have been together five years, but their KQV association dates back about two and a half years. Before that they were on KDKA. The team met in Rochester, N. Y., on New Year's Day, 1926.

Known as the "Blues Chasers," these popular boys will celebrate their second anniversary on KQV Wednesday morning. As a KQV team they have given about 800 performances and as "Blues Chasers" 620 consecutive programs—a local record.

Jack Bankey was born in Oklahoma, joined the Navy in 1914, served in the World War, became heavyweight champion of the U. S. S. Vermont. He plays the guitar and sings.

Tony Lombardo, accordionist, is of French-Italian parentage and was born in Florence, Pa., which is about just this far between Pittsburgh and Weirton, W. Va. He played the drums at eight, ran away from school and joined a carnival band at 12, later played the saxophone in a home town orchestra. Adept at seven instruments.

Studio Lights

The man who plays "Old Hunch" with Alice Joy is an NBC vice president in disguise . . .

KQV's Radio Rascals rate an evening spot tonight . . . Uncle Henry (Lewis H. Abel) uses smart psychology in picking names for his juvenile stars . . . such unusual titles as "The Handkerchief Girl," "Neuralgia," "Carrie Cheer," "The Jolly Jester" and "Will Do" are not only fanciful but forceful . . .

Claude Morris writes the most beautiful continuity of any production man in Pittsburgh . . . and only 23!

Singin' Sam has been signed again . . . the deepest bass in radio . . .

Ellen R., Grant Building.—Bill Farren is married . . . It was foolish for anyone to advise you that the Duquesne-Holy Cross game could be heard in Pittsburg over WORC, Worcester . . . the station uses only 100 watts.

Wonder if Phil Cook and the boys don't feel a little worried the way that NBC operator, Hack Wilson, brings their characters to life . . . and Baby Rose Marie added extra punch to an extra good program Saturday night . . .

The symphonic poem, "September," by Antonio Modarelli, conductor of the Pittsburgh Symphony, would provide a wonderful tone test for radio sets . . . the young composer received several curtain calls at the symphony inaugural in Syria Mosque last night . . . and we sighed again, "Why doesn't some Pittsburgh individual or concern put this symphony on the air every Sunday?"

Independent stations in New York have profited $15,000 already from CBS' decision to bar commercial religious programs . . .

Coming—Coach Bob Zuppke, of Illinois, on WCAE Wednesday with Grantland Rice and Roy Chapman Andrews, explorer of the Gobi Desert, a week hence . . . Rudolf Friml, famous composer, on WCAE Wednesday, November 25 . . . Kathryn Meisle, American contralto, on WJAS this Wednesday night at 10:30 . . .

It took John Charles Thomas eight and a half hours to fly from Chicago to New Orleans for that NBC broadcast last night . . . the same trip required three and a half years when LaSalle, French adventurer, looked over the territory some years ago.

Today's Tid Bit:

The married men's club at KDKA was discussing philosophy.

"Now, take Glenn Riggs, or don't take him," remarked Percy Boyd. "There's a man with convictions. He believes implicity in a higher power, don't you, Glenn?"

"My dear boy," confided Glenn, "I married her."

The Loudspeaker

—By—
LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—How long have you been in my employ, Jenkins? Two years, six months? Long time, Jenkins. You've been faithful after your fashion, Jenkins. But you are not yourself recently. Can it be the voices, Jenkins? Well, we certainly hear plenty of them. Voices, voices, voices—all through the day, all through the night. It's enough to drive you mad.

Hello everybody, Lopez speaking . . Sixty election districts out of 1,107 in Brooklyn give Levy 4,603, Carrington 1,281, Thomas 579 . . Hap-py Days are here a-gain . . . Are ya' listenin? . . . Booth has the ball and he's going like a streak; it looks like a touchdown. Sorry, folks, it isn't Booth, after all. It's Lassiter. And it isn't a touchdown.

Hello, Ma! I knocked him down four times in the seventh round. He kept gettin' up . . . Thank you, Yasha . . . Good morning, my dear children. We are now going to play for you. The Ri-de of the Val-ky-ries by Vog-ner. I got a letter from a la-dy in I-O-Way . . . This is Graham McNamee speaking Good night all . . . When the moon comes o-ver the moun-tain . . . Twenty words, no more, no less. Count them.

Would You Want to Marry a Conspicuous Petter?

Is a fellow a tramp if he tries to pet every girl he meets—
Or is he only "being natural?"
And how does he feel about his petting partner?
Does he respect her as much as he would the girl who says "Hands Off"?

And will he be as eager to marry a girl who has been "big-hearted" to all the boys as he would the girl who's been exclusive?

Al would like to know.

CHANGED VIEWS

"Dear Miss Martin:

"I've read your column for two years now and I respect your judgment so I'd very much appreciate your opinion on what I am about to tell you.

"Until I was 22 I had high ideals about girls. I felt that a fellow shouldn't pet a girl. That they were sort of sacred and were not to be experimented with before marriage. At that time I had in contempt young men who did that. But within the past few years I have gone "the way of all flesh" and capitulated to their charms.

Do you consider that I have thrown away my ideals or was this to be expected? Is it an experience that every young man must go through? I have many girls. It hasn't caused me to lose my respect for these girls because I felt that if it was wrong, I was equally to blame.

"Do you condemn the young men who attempt to pet every attractive girl they meet? Or is it just a part of our natures that shouldn't be suppressed? Please tell me what you think?

"AL K."

HUMILIATING

What do I think? I'll answer that by asking you one, Sonny Boy. If young men were "petting" a sister of yours—arousing her emotions—lowering her self-respect—weakening her self-control—risking possible disgrace to her good name, and the good name of your family—would you say "Go to it, kid! Have your fun while you're young! You'll be a long time married!" Would you tell her that or would you be ashamed of her?

Would the familiarities of her boy friends humiliate you? Would their snickers about her, when they "got together" on the corner or in a poolroom, burn you up? You'd be a queer sort of boy if they didn't!

You say you respect your Petting Partners. Do you mean that, honestly? Would you like a Hot Mamma for a wife—and the mother of your children? If you boys all go in for and insist on heavy petting, the girls must have to pet a good many of you.

Would you want to marry one who had petted dozens before she got to you?

CREATE REAL IDEALS

Or do you want a "good girl?" If you do—Why don't you do your part to keep girls "good?" Why don't you keep yourself worthy of a good girl?

It takes two to make a petting party.

As for your ideals—what makes you think they were "high" until you were 20? You know that's not true! Character can't change over night. You were "good" because you were afraid to be otherwise. Until that time girls were queer and fearful beings to you, and you treated them with respect because you feared to do anything else! You "respected" them and talked "holier than thou" because you were jealous of those boys who had nerve enough to pet! And as soon as you had nerve enough, you hopped to it.

Stop kidding yourself about your vanished "ideals" and begin to create some real ones. Learn to treat your girl friends as you would your sister. Respect them as you'll want your sister respected. Then you'll learn to respect yourself . . . and your problem will be solved.

Many Get Great Kick Out of Defying Conventions of Society—Fay King

THEY SEEM MORE INTERESTED IN THE CONVENTIONS THEY ARE DEFYING THAN IN EACH OTHER
WHEN YOU'RE IN LOVE YOU WANT ALL THE WORLD TO KNOW IT, SO YOU GET MARRIED
FAY KING

By FAY KING

"But why marry?" is not a modern debate.

Countless couples have got a great kick out of defying the conventions of society, and it seemed to me were more concerned in that than each other.

They really had a sort of martyr complex and refusing to marry gave them the sort of problem they loved to suffer for.

Some such couples I knew I liked in spite of their silly anti-marriage fuss. But they did not seem to me as happy as if they had married when there was no reason that they should not.

And as for the happy parting when they should decide to call it quits—that never turned out the way it should at all.

Marriage is always best.

Madge Is Puzzled Over Mysterious Chinese Message

The rice paper which Mr. Ticer had found pinned to the cushion of my automobile was of flaming red, while the characters upon it were of that blue black which is supposed to be the property of the raven's wing and the hair of Irish colleens. But it was not of beautiful girls nor yet of birds I was thinking as my shrinking fingers unfolded the paper. All my mentality was focused upon the conviction that sometime, somewhere I had seen the characters of the superscription, alien though they were to anything I ever had known or studied.

Few were the characters upon the outside of the paper, and I reasoned that perhaps they stood out so starkly as to set my imagination working. But the impression persisted, and when I looked upon the inner pages, and saw that at the head, apart from the letter, for such I judged the thing to be, the same characters were repeated, the sense of familiarity grew stronger.

I spread out the paper, finding fortunately that it was written in such a manner that I could compare the superscription upon the outside with the salutation, if such it were, upon the inside. There were more characters upon the heading, but among them I soon found the group which with rising excitement I decided was a replica of the superscription.

The aroma of the coffee came reproachfully to my nostrils, and picturing hospitable Mrs. Ticer's dismay if she should find that I had not partaken of the things she had prepared I laid the paper down, drank a cup of the coffee and ate one of her biscuits. I knew that I could square my neglect of the doughnuts by begging some to take home to Junior and to Roderick, a request which always pleases her mightily. But I found it hard enough to choke the biscuit down and swallow the coffee, although ordinarily I never slight a culinary offering of my neighbor. The inscription upon the paper obsessed me. I wanted to determine whether or not the characters which had haunting familiarity for me appeared anywhere else in the missive.

When I took up the paper again, I went over it carefully two or three times, and at last I found that at least twice in the body of the letter—for such I judged the paper to be—appeared the characters which I had singled out. It did not take the brain of a Sherlock to deduce that these represented a name, for I know of the Oriental habit of formally repeating the name of the recipient of a letter several times during its context.

But what name? Could it be my own? Was this mysterious message, evidently meant to be found by me, directed to me? I mulled over the suggestion, then discarded it as even more bizarre than the method of the writer of the letter in making sure that it would fall into my hands. The Chinese are a wily people, and the men who had sent me the demand for Marion's lock box were evidently as keen as they were unscrupulous. They would know that I had no knowledge which would enable me to read the letter, and that furthermore, I would not run the risk of disclosing the secret of the box by calling in the aid of some strange Chinese to decipher the letter.

Then to whom was it addressed, and why was it put into my car? Or was the whole thing simply a cleverly planned hoax, designed to frighten me, and to let me know that despite the precautions my father had taken against them, the Chinese were still to be reckoned with.

I put the letter down beside me, and began groping through my memory pictures to see which one of them would reflect the group of characters in superscription and body which were so hauntingly familiar to me. I wondered if I were losing the remarkable photographic memory which my mother had discovered in me when I was a tiny child, and which she had trained so carefully that she had made it a most valuable asset to me. Nowhere in the mental card index where from childhood I have filed my impressions, could I find a trace of those cryptic characters.

Of course the first memory which had come to me was that of the only Chinese I ever had known, Lee Chow, high-born Chinese friend of Hugh Grantland, who because of the plots against his life in his native land had for years masqueraded as Hugh's faithful servant. If only Lee Chow were in the —— with a little shiver I realized that I almost had thought "in the land of the living." But, I reflected despondently, I had no means of knowing whether indeed he and Hugh Grantland, the most faithful friend any human being possessed, were living or dead. The inexplicable silence of Hugh for so many months, the brazen reappearance in Mary's life of Jack Leslie who, I knew, would never have dared to come back to America were Hugh not dead or so far away that his ultimate return was problematical, these things had filled my heart with forebodings of the worst.

My pulses jumped excitedly. Could it be possible that this letter—the direction of my thoughts was changed as swiftly as if someone had thrown a mental switch. For slowly, noiselessly, against the vines that framed the window opposite me, I saw a face rising.

Household Hints

Leftover fish should be used the very next day—or not at all. It may taste all right, but still cause illness if kept too long.

Whitewash does a three-fold duty. It is a valuable disinfectant, preserves plaster and if properly prepared, acts as a fire retardent.

The coarser and more gristly meat is, the more slowly it should be cooked. If you must economize on your cuts of meat, remember to cook it more thoroughly and the result will be just as nourishing and good to eat as the more expensive cuts.

It not only means care before making, but care in laundering if colors are to be retained. Never use too hot water. Always use pure white suds and do not rub the soap directly on the clothes. Rinse well in several waters. Turn wrong side out on the line and dry in a shady place. And, lastly, do not use an extremely hot iron for pressing.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Correspondence

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

One of my teachers at school left for another town about a year ago. I was always very fond of her so I wrote her a letter. Much to my disappointment I did not receive an answer. Because I would like to correspond with her, would it be correct for me to send her a postal card while on my vacation and ask her to reply?

SCHOOL GIRL.

It would be gracious and thoughtful for you to send her a card while you are on your vacation, but it would not be in order for you to ask her for a reply. You must leave this to her own wishes. Perhaps some unkind fate kept the first letter from arriving at her home, so you might some time write her another note, saying that you had written before. Then if she does not answer, you will know that probably her life is too busy.

Bread and Butter Note

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. How long should I wait before sending a bread and butter letter?

2. As I am a rather distant relative of my hostess, would it be correct for me to write a few friendly or more personal things in this note?

EVERYDAY READER.

1. Don't wait at all—write the note the very first opportunity you have after your return home. And the sooner, the better, for a bread and butter letter written immediately after one returns from a visit registers a hearty enthusiasm that a delayed letter never can indicate.

2. Yes, indeed. Be as personal as you wish to be in such a note, for the fact that we are invited for a visit means that we should be friendly in our expressions of appreciation of the hospitality.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

If vanishing cream is among the beauty quester's beloved possessions she should select the kind that matches her complexion. White makes the skin look chalky. The best selection is ivory color.

When applying brilliantine to a friendly-laid permanent wave that is too bushy, put it on with an atomizer, which distributes the fluid evenly. Both brilliantine and hot water can be used, if the glorious crown is acting up, refuses to behave properly. The water wave, by the way, should always follow the same design. Otherwise it won't last from one shampoo to the next, but will take on strange crimpy lines and be mean and troublesome.

When opening a pimple, sterilize the needle by holding it in a flame. Cover the fingers with clean gauze and press gently. Rough treatment of the skin will result in scars.

When the head is long from crown to nape of neck, a lowered hair dress isn't so good. When considering a new coiffure, regard the profile in the double mirror, taking special note of the nose. How it appears in the facial landscape depends upon the arrangement of the hair. Those little curls in the middle of the forehead are not for the long-nosed contingent, nor is the straight back wave a help.

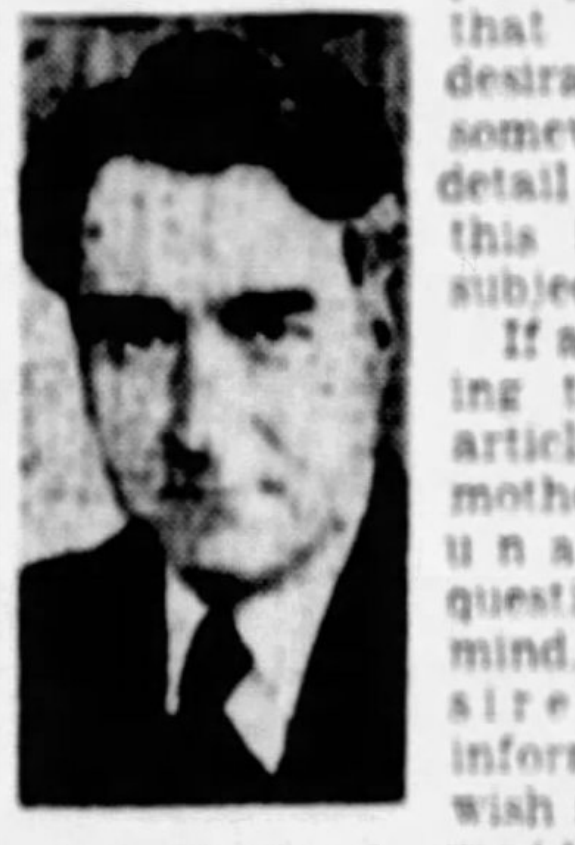
Daily Weight Record as Test of Baby's Progress

FEEDING BABY
This is the sixth of a series of eight articles on Infant feeding by Dr. Royal S. Copeland. In this series Dr. Copeland discusses every phase of this important question. The next article will appear Thursday in this page.

During the past two weeks it has been my pleasure to present a series of articles on infant feeding. So many inquiries have come to me from young mothers that it seems desirable to go somewhat into detail regarding this important subject.



Dr. Copeland

If after reading these six articles, any mother has an unanswered question in her mind, or desires further information, I wish she would write me. I have tried to make clear the many points involved, but sometimes one fails to express himself as clearly as he would wish. Please do not hesitate to write if you are in doubt regarding any matter relating to the care of your baby.

Just how much food the baby shall take in each 24 hours depends upon its age. Not only this, but it varies, too, with the size of the infant and its special needs.

For the first few days after its birth, the average baby requires in 24 hours from 10 to 16 ounces of food. As the child grows older and bigger, it must have more. The usual rule is, that every time the baby gains a pound in weight it must have two or three ounces more food every day.

The best test of the baby's progress is its weight. There should be a pair of scales in every home where there is a baby. If the gain in weight is not satisfactory, in all probability there is something wrong with the feeding.

I am about to give you some figures, but I want you to know they are merely the average figures in a series of 20,000 children examined and their weights noted. Let us assume that a baby less than one month of age weighed eight pounds. About a half-pound will be added in the next month of life, and another half-pound the following month, making the child weigh about nine pounds before reaching the age of three months.

Let us take another baby, a taller baby, perhaps 22 inches tall. This youngster will add about a half a pound of weight a month, and at the age of six months will weigh at least 12 pounds.

Once more speaking about the average baby, we will consider briefly how often it should be fed. It is a pretty good rule to say in general that every four hours is about right. Your doctor may think that for special reasons the interval should be shorter, every three hours, perhaps.

A good system is to have the first feeding at six o'clock in the morning, and then every four hours until two hours after midnight. After the first two months, it is probable the baby will sleep quietly after the ten o'clock feeding. This will permit the mother to get eight hours of uninterrupted sleep, until the six o'clock feeding hour arrives. As the child grows older, say to the age of eight or nine months, this schedule may be changed, omitting the ten o'clock feeding.

It must be understood that haphazard methods will not do. The clock should set the time, and the baby must be awakened to receive its feeding exactly on the dot. The increase in weight, too, will be the test. By the beginning of the tenth month, some solid food will be added to the diet.

In preparing the formula, the greatest exactness must be used. The mixture must not be made by guess. The ingredients must be carefully measured. Needless to say, all the utensils used in the preparation of the milk mixture must be boiled, thoroughly boiled.

The mother job is a difficult one, but attention to all these details will bring a rich reward.

Contract Bridge -:-

OFFICIAL SYSTEM As Adopted by Leading Authorities

By E. V. SHEPARD

Leading Partner's Suit

Both against trump and no-trump declarations ordinarily it is wise to assume that a suit considered worth bidding by your partner should be better to lead than your own suit that was not worth bidding. I continually see games lost needlessly at no-trump because senior is short of his partner's suit and will not make an opening lead of it, although his own suit is markedly inferior.

Against trump declarations you may first lay down a winning card, such as the K from A-K-J-X, before leading your partner's suit, thus showing how you can help to defeat the contract. Ordinarily at no-trumps you at once lead partner's suit.

Against a trump declaration you had best lead fourth-best in case you are long in partner's suit, so that he may better know how many cards the declarer holds of that suit. The old idea of leading the top card of partner's suit only holds good when you hold fewer than four. Against no-trump not only should you lead low from four of partner's suit, but you should lead low from any fair honor (A, K, Q, or even J) that is twice guarded. The following hand shows how such a lead defeated a game contract at no-trump.

♥ A-10-9-6-5-2
♣ A-6-4-2
♦ 7-2

♠ 4-3-2
♣ K-9-7-5

Z

♠ K-Q-J-5
♥ K-J-8
♣ Q-8
♦ J-9-6-3

♠ A-10-9-8-6
♥ Q-4-3
♣ J-10-3
♦ 10-4

I dealt and passed, after which contracting went as follows: A, 1-diamond; Y, 1-heart; B, 1-spade; Z, pass; A, 2-diamonds; Y, 2-hearts; B, 3-no trumps.

Had I led my top heart, B would have held two stops to the suit and he would have led a spade, which I would have won, and again I would have led my partner's suit, but two spade tricks, two heart tricks and five diamond tricks would have given B game before my partner could have gained entry with his side ace to run off his good hearts.

As play went, my low heart was won by Y's ace and the 10 was led back; B's J was captured by my Q, and my low return was the only heart trick won by B. He had to lead a spade. I won the trick with my ace and led my J of clubs through dummy's K. Up went my partner's ace and back came three good hearts, defeating the contract by three tricks.

SEEK SILVER STABILIZATION

By ROBERT S. ALLEN
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—A great international trade agreement between private business interests, which may have far-reaching influence on foreign trade, was in process of negotiation today.

Controlling silver producers, government initiative failing them despite repeated demands for such leadership in stabilizing the price of their commodity, have taken the problem in their own hands.

Under the auspices of the International Chamber of Commerce they have set in motion plans for an international silver selling agreement designed to materially bolster present low price for this metal. Such an international accord, if effected, the producers believe, will act as a powerful stimulus to foreign trade, particularly in India and China, the two great countries using silver.

Announcement of this latest effort by private business to stabilize an international commodity was contained in a report by the committee of experts of the International Chamber made public today by Silas H. Strawn, president United States Chamber of Commerce.

LONDON GREETS LORD MAYOR

LONDON, Nov. 9.—(INS.)—A pageant of industrial science, coated thickly with medieval pomp and splendor, moved through this encient city in a drizzling rain today as Alderman Sir Maurice Jenks was installed Lord Mayor of London.

Six great horses drew the Mayor's 9,000-pound plumed coach to the blare of some 16 bands, and formed the grand finale of a mile-long retinue that blended into an industrial exhibit.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

—With—

Patricia Pitt

Yesterday I enumerated some of the committees for the Woman's Exchange sale November 24 in the Hotel Schenley ballroom and today I want to add some more.

Manchurian Situation Discussed by Editor

Countries must not invade other countries to protect their property if they do not want war, Kirby Page, editor of "The World Tomorrow," said in his talk on "National Defense" before the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom on Saturday. To have peace there must be confidence in the machinery of peace and not reliance on armaments; there must be a policy of open door.

The Manchurian situation and the situation in Germany are the two crises today, Mr. Page stated as he sketched conditions in each. Japan, he claims, has the right to keep armed troops only along its railroad front in Manchuria. Speaking of Germany he said the important thing is to prevent an overthrow of the present government. The rank and file of the German people are almost destitute, but the average traveling American does not see this. Quick relief is necessary if the country is to be saved.

ELABORATE EVENING GOWNS IN DEMAND

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Nov. 9.—The siren voice of fashion is making itself heard above the clamor and moanings of the present time. For, it was thought at first that there would be very little market for elaborate fur wraps and evening clothes, and that, consequently, very few would be shown. But the past week or so has seen many dressmakers exhibiting many sumptuous frocks and even ermine wraps and one has learned that many of these lovely things are already on their way to nice, kind homes. And why not?

TODAY WE SHOW a frock just presented at one of the leading houses. The evening ensemble, made by Molyneux, has been purchased by Jeanette MacDonald, the actress star. It is in gold and ivory brocaded lame and the dress has a simple bodice, slightly bloused, with a low, rounded neckline, front and back. The skirt is slit up the front and has a long, narrow train. Sable-colored plumage borders the sleeveless, straight-line jacket of scarf-like propensities.

CLOTH COATS

It has been the fixed policy of this house to hold its first Cloth Coat Sale in December. This year, policies must be changed to meet changed conditions. Although the cloth coat business has been brisk, adverse weather during the past month retarded it, and stocks are far too large. So, we advance our December event, placing on sale immediately the greater part of our stock.

JESTER LAUDS KOMIC CLUB MEETINGS

Pleasing Programs Thrill Members at Theaters; Thousands in Attendance

By SUPREME GRAND JESTER

I visited some of the Warner Theaters-Sun-Telegraph Junior Komic Club meetings yesterday and am going to tell you about it.

I never saw so many fine, sturdy boys and so many bright, pretty girls in one day! There were thousands of them. At first I marveled at the crowds, but as I went from one meeting to another, I soon realized why they turn out in such great numbers.

ENRIGHT CHAPTER

As I entered the door of the Enright Theater, everything was quiet. The theater was well filled and on the stage I saw a lot of little dolls putting on a show. The children burst into applause as the curtain fell. Upon inquiry I learned that the show was the Eugene Marionettes, and that the members of the club were indebted to Roth's Grill, in the Enright Theater Building, for the treat.

Besides the marionette show, there were prizes, flag buttons, life savers and a lot of other things.

CAMERAPHONE

The next stop was the Cameraphone, and here I was greeted by one of the funniest clowns I have ever seen. I went in with the youngsters and there was Kippy, the Komic Club clown, on the stage giving out the prizes from the Barrel of Fun.

There was a junior orchestra on the stage, and the drum bore the sign Lapertche and His Band. Suddenly one of the boys, who turned out to be Eddie Metcalfe, picked up a megaphone and sang.

SCHENLEY CHAPTER

By the time I got over to the Schenley, Kippy and Komic Club Clown had preceded me. I found all the children lined up on the sidewalk, with Kippy posing for a photograph. On the stage later Kippy did some contortionist tricks.

There was a clever banjo trio at the Schenley meeting. These boys can make their instruments almost talk.

HARRIS, DOWNTOWN

There was a big crowd at the Harris Chapter meeting, where Andy Benson, chief executive of the Boy Scouts, entertained with stories, and members of the club entertained on the stage.

I would advise any boy or girl who does not belong to the Warner Theaters-Sun-Telegraph Junior Komic Club, to clip the coupon from the Comic Section of this paper and mail it, without delay, to the Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Let's Meet the Emergency!

CONFIDENT as we may feel as to ultimate recovery, we face at the moment a grave emergency. That emergency must be met!

Unless we meet it promptly and generously . . . we who still have jobs and homes and comforts . . . a great many people in Allegheny county will go hungry and cold this winter. Are we going to fail them—to "let them down" in their hour of greatest need?

This is a passing phase, born of wide-world causes, and we'll come out of it in time. But you can't explain economics to a hungry child or a bewildered mother. And we can't tell the fellow desperately hunting for a job—so that he can keep his family together and stay on his own—that times will get better later on. We've got to act!

For thousands in this county, the coming winter will be the second year of depression. Their standards of living have been scrapped by economic pressure as cruel as it has been undeserved, and the security which cost them the struggles of years has vanished as utterly as their slender savings. They are through—unless we help them!

We need no "sob-stories" to bring home what has happened. A depression world-wide has wreaked local havoc. The jobless and the hungry are in our very block. We know them well. We know them so well that the intimacy of the tragedy shows us grimly something we've never seen—the bottom of the Wheel of Fortune!

The acid test of citizenship and human sympathy is about to be applied. Today several thousand men and women—volunteers all—set out to raise in two weeks a fund of $5,981,184 in a joint appeal covering welfare work, family relief and emergency employment. Seventy-seven units, embracing all but a few of the important organizations of the county, in a unified effort to create part-time jobs and hold social gains.

Gauge your gift, not by what cash you can spare at the moment, but by the amount you could meet over a period of months—the months through which the money will be needed. Take six months, eight months—or "write your own ticket." Interpret in your gift your prospects in better times ahead.

In time the typhoon of depression will blow over. But these thousands who need help can't wait! Could you?

Join us in a pledge to these Unfortunates, your neighbors and ours . . "Nobody hungry or cold this winter."

Since many, reduced to penury, must take instead of give . . . the burden justly falls on those of us who can still give—who have jobs . . . and health . . . and hope!

Early Today upward of 10,000 eager, public-spirited volunteers set out in a two weeks' appeal for the Welfare Fund and Emergency Association. They're not only giving money, but they're giving time. At least, you haven't had to do that. So, when they come to see you, remember that they too are busy men and women with offices and homes. Receive them in that spirit. Help to make their time effective. They're working, not for themselves, but for the children and families who will look to the Welfare Fund for help this winter.

SECRETARY A. W. MELLON OPENING WELFARE FUND DRIVE AT SYRIA MOSQUE MEETING

MELLON SPURS DRIVE TO AID NEEDY HERE

Urges Generous Donations As Churches Join in Rally for Welfare Fund

Secretary of the Treasury A. W. Mellon came back to his home town yesterday to praise the "iPttsburgh Plan" for relieving unemployment and spur its activities by addressing a non-denominational church meeting in Syria Mosque.

Urging that the citizens of the county give whole-hearted support to the joint campaign of the Welfare Fund and Emergency Association, designed to furnish funds to put the "Pittsburgh Plan" in operation during the winter months, Mellon said:

"The Pittsburgh Plan confers a double benefit upon the community, for it not only makes possible needed improvements and provides employment, but at the same time helps to maintain that self-respect which is so essential if people who are able and willing to work are to be spared the bitter experience of receiving money for which no compensating labor has been given. If the work of the Emergency Association can be carried on this winter, in addition to the help rendered by the charitable organizations participating in the Welfare Fund the most pressing needs of the local situation can be met.

BABCOCK HINTS NEW MOVE TO BUY TUNNEL

Commissioner, Law Aide Question Right of Court To Order New Hearing

Possibility that the County Commissioners still are determined to build a Downtown-South Hills vehicular artery over the Wabash Railroad bridge and tunnel, a project which was disapproved by the grand jury Saturday, was seen today in statements from Commissioner E. V. Babcock, sponsor of the plan, and B. B. McGinniss, assistant county solicitor.

Babcock expressed himself as "very dissappointed" over the jury's action, while McGinnis took exception to Judge James H. Gray's order for a rehearing which resulted in the project being disapproved after once having been authorized by the jurors. McGinnis said:

"We can file exceptions to the grand jury's report. Personally I don't believe Judge Gray had a right to refer this matter back to the grand jury. There should have been a rehearing before the court. We also object to the grand jury action because one of its members is in the employ of a firm which is opposing the project."

McGinnis added that the solicitor's office would take no action until after he had conferred with the three County Commissioners, a meeting which Babcock said would be arranged some time this week. The Commissioner said:

"I am very much disappointed. The tunnel is just as necessary for the downtown district as the Boulevard of the Allies was 10 or 12 years ago."

He took exception to a statement that the ramps from the bridge to Fourth avenue in the proposed project would have a 28 per cent grade. He said a check with the county engineer's office showed the grade would be only 6.3 per cent.

CHILDREN FLEE, BLAST BURNS MOTHER

Firemen Periled by Series of 'Gas' Explosions in $30,000 Braddock Blaze

A service garage, 15 automobiles and two homes were destroyed by fire early yesterday in Braddock and Valley View, Springdale Township, causing damage estimated at $36,000.

A series of gasoline explosions endangered lives of firemen, and for a time threatened a church and convent when fire starting in the furnace soon destroyed the two-story garage of Bauman Brothers, Inc., 1215 Braddock avenue, Braddock, destroying 15 automobiles and accessories, causing $30,000 damage. Forty automobiles, most of them on the first floor of the building, were saved.

Shortly after the first alarm was sounded at 9 a. m. fire companies from North Braddock, Braddock and the Edgar Thomson Steel Works were on the scene. Their prompt arrival kept the flames from spreading to the Slovak Presbyterian Church and St. Michael's Convent, and other buildings in the district. Firemen battled the blaze three hours.

ESCAPE IN EXPLOSIONS

Fire Capt. Michael Sabol, of Braddock, had just reached his home, across the street from the garage, when the fire broke out. He joined his company in fighting the flames, and immediately afterward narrowly escaped injury with a dozen others when a series of gasoline explosions tore out the front and roof of the building.

The building was owned by John Wilczek, who resides at 1217 Braddock avenue. He and his son, Theodore, drove out all but three of the 40 automobiles saved. Joseph Bauman, owner of the garage, saved three new automobiles.

Two families were left homeless when an explosion followed the use of kerosene to hurry the morning fire yesterday. Mrs. Emma Negrich, 29, was burned severely about the face and body by the blast, and narrowly escaped, with her husband and seven children, the flames which burned their home and the home of a neighbor, Ralph Horton, to the ground. The houses were three-room frame buildings.

'ARMY' AIDS VICTIMS

Mrs. Negrich was given first aid by Dr. H. S. D. Mock, of Springdale, and removed to Citizens General Hospital, where her condition was said to be serious. Her husband and their seven children, Mary, 13; Julia, 11; Steve, 10; Charles, 8; John, 6; Mike, 4, and George, 10 months, were taken to the New Kensington headquarters of the Salvation Army, where they were clothed and fed by Adjt. and Mrs. Richard Bryant.

Horton, his mother, Mrs. Mary Horton, 75, and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Ivy Horton, saved only their clothing when the blast occurred in the adjoining house. The Negrich family was forced to leave the building without clothes.

Horton, his mother and sister-in-law had just moved into their home a month ago, and Horton, unemployed more than 15 months, had spent several weeks putting in windows and doors in lieu of rent. Damage was estimated at $6,000 by George Oaskin, assistant chief of the Springdale Volunteer Fire Department.

JOB CAMP SITE CHANGED

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 9.—National Guardsmen under the direction of Gen. David J. Davis, of Scranton, adjutant general of the National Guard, were ready to start work today on the second Western Pensylvania camp for homeless men.

Repeated protests from Bentleyville citizens resulted in the camp site being changed to Claysville, 10 miles west of here. James T. Heffran, who led the Bentleyville residents in objecting to the camp, said that most of the district's unemployed men owned their own homes or were buying them and would not live at the camp while working on county roads during the winter.

The first camp in Western Pennsylvania has been established at Normalville, near Connellsville, Fayette County. State troopers keep order in the camp. In several Bentleyville churches yesterday, the plan of Gov. Pinchot was criticized.

League Achieves 5-Day War Week In Manchuria

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Let's see what the League of Nations has accomplished with the Sino-Nipponese war.

They've finally got it down to a five-day week.

Japan has asked for time out to read Stimson notes.

The Geneva message to the front has been as successful as a house-to-house canvass of the deserted village.

Before this Oriental interpretation of a Donnybrook Fair is over, the Japanese diplomats will get rich on stamps enclosed for replies.

The Japanese are saying it with flowers in the form of wreaths and gates ajar.

If America must send a representative to Manchuria, the best guy we can think of is Joe Humphries to announce the winner.

MOTHER, GIRL HELD IN FIGHT

A mother and daughter were to be given a hearing in Morals Court today, charged with keeping a disorderly house, as a result of a fight which sent one man to the South Side Hospital and caused severe injury to another.

Police reported they had seized five cases of home brew and five gallons of wine when they raided the home of Mrs. Olga Golke, 45, at 2810 East Carson street, and arrested Mrs. Golke and her daughter, Helen, 25.

The raid came after Nick Susan, 23, of 2800 East Carson street, had been taken to the hospital and 23 stitches placed in his face. A companion, Joseph Sposik, 23, of 2910 Mary street, who had three stitches taken in a face wound, said he and Nick had been drinking home brew in Mrs. Golke's home when the daughter and two men, strangers to him, entered and started a fight.

The other two men were not apprehended.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Nov. 9.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Mr. Hoover's Navy jury set him free. Mr. Gardiner's jury set him free. Now we are right where we are in all our investigations. Just where we started from. The only way we will ever find out who is right is to have a war. If we are ready for it, Hoover is right, if we are not Gardiner is right. And wars are just like depression, they come when you least expect 'em.

Will Rogers

We lost a lot of common sense and a lot of well-needed humor in the Senate when we lost Caraway, of Arkansaw. It was a pleasure to watch him walk up and down the aisle, like Felix the cat, and then bump the Republicans off with just one short remark.

Your, WILL.

EUGENE SPEICHER'S 'BABETTE' . . . BOUGHT FOR CARNEGIE INSTITUTE'S COLLECTION

CRITIC SCORES ART AWARDS

Frank Jewett Mather, art critic and author, of Princeton, N. J., here to lecture on the thirtieth International art exhibition at Carnegie Institute, today deplored the method of determining prize winning paintings.

The awards should not be left to a committee, in Mr. Mather's estimation, but should be made by individuals. In a committee selection a mass of ideas are reflected, he declared, while the idea of the individual is ignored. Discussing this year's awards, he said:

"While the exhibition itself maintains a very high average, the selections by the jury of awards are dreadful. The awards are a little worse than usual, but I am not surprised. The selection should not be left to committees."

Mather will speak tonight in Carnegie Lecture Hall in the fourth of a series of lectures on the international.

'Babette' Painting Declared Finest In Exhibition

By PENELOPE REDD

American art has been given unexpected official encouragement at Carnegie Institute this season.

Miss Redd

The premier prize was awarded to an American, Franklin Watkins, for the first time since 1923. Now we are notified that Eugene Speicher's "Babette" has been purchased for the Institute's permanent collection, thus observing the founder's request to purchase works by living American painters.

The Speicher painting, as we have already noted in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, is the finest individual achievement of the exhibition.

Speicher has had various paintings in the annual exhibitions that well-merited the first prize. One year Augustus John's earthy "Madame Suggia" nudged out Speicher's exquisite "Jeanne Balzac." While in other years the juries were prone to give Matisse and Picasso their initial official honors. This year Mr. Speicher's service on the jury of award rendered his work ineligible for prize consideration.

"Babette" manifests Speicher's skill in composing a painting to satisfy those who regard pictures solely from the viewpoint of abstract form.

Moreover, "Babette" will fulfill the demand of those who regard painting as the communication of ideas pertinent to the times.

"Babette" has the easy freedom of today's woman without the modish abnormalities of the emaciated torso and limbs.

There is the spaciousness of the classic, without the coldness, in this serene, well-poised young woman.

"Babette" even offers luscious color ranging from the faintest of rose into the richest rose-violet for those who seek the reassurance of the harmonious in contemporary art.

In this portrait Eugene Speicher's intention and his performance are equal in measure and at the highest power this painter has yet attained. This is an occasion where the "Art Patrons" have had a good investment made of their annual purchase fund.

Police testified Thomas later saw Mahaffey on the street and caused his arrest. Witnesses for Mahaffey also testified as to his good character.

responding to the demands that are being made upon them, and no one can doubt that Pittsburgh will give with customary generosity and will see that none in our midst shall suffer this winter.

"We owe it to the needy, and more especially we owe it to ourselves, to see them through their difficulties until better times return, as return they will. Let us prove that Pittsburgh, which has always responded so generously to every call for help in this and other countries, will never fail her own people in their time of greatest need."

PAYNE SPURS DRIVE

Frederick H. Payne, Assistant Secretary of War, who accompanied Secretary Mellon to Pittsburgh, said:

"What concerns us now is how we can best mobilize for the fight on depression and unemployment which has swept over the country like a blight. We have the resources, we have the will, we have the organization to combat that blight; and the war has shown that when America makes up her mind and throws herself into the fight she will see it through in spite of all the obstacles that fate, or man, or machine can bring against us.

"In this emergency we must not—we cannot afford to fail those who are less fortunate than ourselves. Their problems have become ours, and we must push forward to a satisfactory solution of those problems."

CHURCHMEN SPEAK

Addresses were also made by the Rev. Lawrence A. O'Connell, of Epiphany Catholic Church; the Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, of the Shadyside Presbyterian Church, and Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson, of the Rodef Shalom Congregation.

The speakers were introduced by the Rev. Dr. Carl Wallace Petty, of the Frist Baptist Church, who presided. He was presented to the audience by Joseph Dilworth, general campaign chairman of the Welfare Fund drive. The invocation was delivered by the Rev. Dr. Albert E. Day, of the Christ Methodist Episcopal Church, and the benediction by the Rt. Rev. Alexander Mann, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Pittsburgh. Special music was presented by the Stephen Foster Singers and the Chamber of Commerce Chorus.

Pershing and Lindy Plead for Unemployed

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—(Universal.)—Gen. Pershing, Col. Lindbergh, Mary Pickford and Mrs. Kathleen Norris last night made a nation-wide radio appeal to the American people for wholehearted co-operation in relieving unemployment and ending depression.

They spoke over the National and Columbia systems in behalf of the President's organization on unemployment relief.

Asserting that the nation is again on the battlefront, Gen. Pershing said:

"If we do not act at once, this winter will bring a numbing calamity that will grip the economic and political vitals of our country for a generation. But we will give. We will act. We are Americans."

Col. Lindbergh spoke briefly of the cause of the depression, saying the nation has overproduction with lack of purchasing power. He continued:

"A system must be developed in which science and production methods will contribute to individual welfare instead of unemployment. We have in this country all that is necessary for the welfare of every individual. We can and no doubt will survive the present crisis."

Mrs. Norris urged a spirit of optimism.

WE'RE ONLY Second Best

If you are one of those lucky people who have a garden, or a flock of hens, or a good cow, we wouldn't dream of trying to sell you vegetables, or eggs, or milk—or any other food you raise yourself. For food that comes direct from the land is the best possible food.

But, unfortunately, very few of us can raise our own food. We must rely on others to grow it for us, and on others to bring it to us.

Next best to your own land for food is your A & P store. For A & P gets its food direct from the producers. Your A & P store is only one step from the fields where food grows.

BAN ON SUNDAY FOOTBALL IGNORED

Oakland Police Fail to Halt Game Despite Walsh Order; Bloomfield Stopped

Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh's order to his police inspectors prohibiting Sunday football in the city had varied results yesterday.

While thousands of fans crowded Dean's Field, under the Bloomfield Bridge, Lieut. Clem Austin and police from the Forty-third street station prevented a scheduled game between Bloomfield and McKees Rocks teams.

In a field off Frazier street, Oakland, the Papales and the Oakland Community Club played a complete game before a large crowd without police interference.

Informed that a football game had been played in his district, Inspector James N. Hoey, of the Oakland district, commented:

"If there was a game I didn't know anything about it."

The majority of the amateur teams in the city moved out to the county districts to play scheduled games.

Following a complaint, Squirrel Hill police dispersed a score of youths engaged in scrimmage in a field at Fifth avenue and Beechwood boulevard.

Following a riot last Sunday at Dean's Field, in which a little girl and two policemen were injured, the police superintendent issued an order to rigidly enforce the law governing Sunday sports.

In a statement Saturday, Supt. Walsh said he would hold the inspector of the district and the patrolman on the beat responsible for any Sunday football games that might be played.

Doors were forced open, bureau drawers were searched and bedclothing was overturned in the search for valuables. The extent of the theft could not be determined, according to Shaw.

TWO MEN HELD UP

LIBRARY OF 500 BOOKS GIVEN COUNTY JAIL

Carnegie Director Makes Gift to Institution After Getting Inmates' Appeal

Literary indulgence is assured for prisoners in the county jail following a gift of 500 books, the nucleus of a circulating library, from Ralph Munn, director of Carnegie Library.

Munn sent the cargo after receiving a letter from an inmate saying many of the prisoners would appreciate the opportunity to read but had no books.

Warden John McNeil, who said he had made many requests to organizations for books but has never received a response, expressed delight when the books arrived. He is making plans to build bookcases this week, and hopes the library may be enlarged. The new library consists of standard works, fiction and non-fiction.

The temptation to gamble with noiseless soap dice will be lessened by the library, Warden McNeil said.

ODDS NEVER AFFECT CARNEGIE SPIRIT

AS A GENERAL rule there isn't much nourishment in moral victories, but in the kind that Carnegie Tech is scoring, one after another, in the current football season there is almost as much credit for the Skibos and satisfaction for their followers as if they were actual triumphs. The loss of four games by the Scots so far has surprised nobody. They had little material to start with and were figured to be outclassed in the majority of their engagements.

Johnny Graveno

But Carnegie has looked as good in an off season as many a team looks in a successful campaign. The fact that they had no chance to win against Purdue, Notre Dame or Pitt never had the slightest effect upon the spirit of the Tartans, except to make them fight all the harder against the hopeless odds they were facing, and they came out of each reverse with almost as much glory as the victor. This was particularly true of last Saturday's tangle with Pitt, in which, far from being crushed as the dope had indicated, they gave one of the season's outstanding exhibitions of gameness and fighting spirit and held the vaunted Panther stars to a score of 14 to 6.

A PROSPECT HOPELESS enough in the first place was rendered even more discouraging by the loss of three regulars in Lib Lewis, Jerry O'Toole and Clyde Heinzer, and on top of that Capt. Murray Armentrout was disabled before the end of the first half. Yet the stout-hearted Schenley Park lads carried on to a showing that would have been a credit to them even if they had been able to present their full strength.

Johnny Graveno replaced Armentrout with a brilliance that made him a standout. George Kavel, Angelo Bevevino, Hooks Sample and the rest played as if inspired, and the entire team put up a fight, culminating in a touchdown late in the fray, that has not been surpassed anywhere this year. If their material had equaled their spirit the Skibos would have come off the lot with a real victory, and even as it was they shared the glory with the winners. The fightingest losers ever are these 1931 Skibos. Some such spirit as theirs must have been in mind to prompt the words "It is not whether you won or lost but how you played the game."

NO TEAM CAN be expected to do more than win, and for that reason, all honor to the Panthers for their victory. And it is all the more to their credit that they were able to do so in the face of the great opposition put up by the Plaid.

But at that there was something lacking in the way the Sutherlands worked. Their performance on the whole was not up to the standards of this unquestionably powerful outfit.

AS INDIVIDUALS THEY did well enough. Paul Reider, Jimmy Clark, Jim MacMurdo, Ralph Daugherty, Jess Quatse, Eddie Hirshberg and others contributed many brilliant plays, but as a team the Panthers did not click as impressively as usual. If they had looked upon Carnegie as a pushover, they made a mistake. If they had lost form they'd better put in some overtime this week to get it back. For, and the sooner they realize it the better, the game they played last Saturday will not beat the Army.

Jewel Ens

JEWEL ENS may have seen his Pirate connections severed, and there may be no certainty as to just where his baseball future will take him, but for the present he can't tear himself away from the old town. He's still a Pittsburgher and wants to remain so as long as possible.

Ens has decided to stay here for this winter, at least. When his lease on his old living quarters expired November 1 he rented another apartment in Pocusset street, Squirrel Hill, and has removed his family to the new home for the cold months.

WHERE THE FORMER Buccaneer manager will make his residence in future off-seasons will depend on the nature and the location of his next baseball engagement. If convenient, he'd like to bring his family back here every winter.

Jewel will attend the National League meeting in New York next month and also the joint session of the majors in Chicago, prepared to make the best connections possible for 1932. That he will be taken on by some major league club there is no doubt, as the big show has plenty of room for men of his ability and standing.

"MEANWHILE, I WANT to be considered as being a Pittsburgher," said Ens. "I've spent 10 happy years in this city, I married a Pittsburgh girl, my two children were born here, and I feel that this is my home. If I have to take permanent leave later it will be with the fondest recollections. Everybody has been good to me here, and I can't say too much in praise of Mr. Dreyfuss. He has been my friend and very kind to me at all times." Jewel next season will be celebrating his twenty-fifth anniversary in baseball. He has served 24 years in the game, and served them along such clean and up-and-up lines that it may be truthfully said he hasn't an enemy.

RALSTON (RUSTY) GILL, star halfback at California, was a fizzle last year because of a lack of aggressiveness. Bill Ingram, the new coach, put so much of it into him this fall that Gill has not only been playing a whirlwind game on the gridiron but announces he will become a professional heavyweight fighter at the close of the present football season.

Rusty, who is 22, stands 6 feet 1 inch and weighs 195 pounds. He has appeared in several amateur bouts and almost always knocked out his opponents. He says his reason for deciding to enter the ring is that he wants to study law after he graduates next May and needs money to finance his extra tuition.

IN THE ORTHODOX school of football a quarterback is a quarterback because he calls signals, but under Pop Warner the quarterback is such just because there happens to be a position so named in the backfield.

Pop Warner

Paul Lowry reports that at Stanford the signal warbler for the former Pitt coach may be a fullback, an end, a tackle or a guard. A few years ago Heinecke, a Stanford center, was rated one of the brainiest signal dispensers on the coast.

BEFORE A RECENT game, Warner called a morning meeting of the "quarterbacks." The following players assembled at Pop's home: Capt. Hillman, fullback-quarterback; Hulen, guard; Moffatt, Glover, Campbell and Hardy, halfbacks. Hillman was the only bonafide quarter in the bunch. And Warner's system has been pretty successful this year, as usual. His team had a clean record until Southern California toppled it Saturday, 19 to 0. With Penn, Maryland and Ursinus going down on the same day, and St. Mary's falling yesterday, the list of undefeated teams was reduced to 17—Notre Dame, Northwestern, Harvard, Cornell, Syracuse, Fordham, Bucknell, Temple, Georgia, Tulane, Tennessee and Southern Methodist in the first division, and Allegheny, Davis and Elkins, Johns Hopkins, Kansas Aggies and Massachusetts Aggies in the second flight.

MONONGAHELA, BEAVER VALLEY TEAMS LEAD

By JULIUS LEVIN

The race for the Class A football championship of the Western Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic League has narrowed down to a fight between the Monongahela Valley and the Beaver Valley as a result of the elimination of New Kensington, the Allegheny Valley's lone contender, at the hands of Beaver Falls in a night fray at New Kensington Friday.

Carl Glock's Ken High gridders, after scoring six straight victories, met their downfall in a rugged contest with Heckathorne's charges by a score of 12 to 0.

CLAIRTON, TUBERS WIN

Two of the three contenders in the Monongahela came through their tests of the past weekend, Clairton swamping Elizabeth, 53-0, for its seventh straight triumph, while McKeesport, Bill Sullivan's smooth-working team, removed another barrier from its path by nosing out New Castle, 7 to 6. Washington, the third team from that section in the undefeated class, enjoyed a day of rest.

While McKeesport managed to keep its winning streak intact, the Tubers saw their goal line crossed for the first time this season. New Castle's touchdown represents the only points scored against the Tubers in their string of seven successive conquests.

Clairton, George Woodman's powerful contender, used its second-string performers to pile up a 53-0 tally on Elizabeth. The regulars were saved for the tough battle with Nate Lippe's Aliquippa eleven at Clairton Saturday.

STOWE ELIMINATED

The Panhandle division saw its last undefeated eleven fall by the wayside when Stowe Township bowed to the smooth-working Ambridge team, one of the strongest in the district, despite the fact that it has been held to scoreless ties by Monessen and Aliquippa.

Stowe Township, coached by Ted Marnen, was undefeated prior to its battle with Moe Rubenstein's aggregation, a scoreless tie with Har-Brac being the only blemish on its otherwise perfect record. Ambridge, however, presented a fine passing attack and took advantage of all the breaks to win by a 19-6 score.

Coach Lomond's Midland aggregation, which plays Ambridge this weekend in one of its toughest tests of the season, recorded its eighth straight triumph, but saw its goal line crossed for the first time in a grueling battle with Aliquippa, 14-6. This is the same team that lost to Washington, 34-6, but Lippe's eleven has shown a decided improvement since that early season fray.

One of the big features of last week's results was the remarkable showing an inspired Fifth Avenue eleven made in its contest with Schenley, one of the favorites to win the Section I crown of the City League. Schenley was picked to win with points to spare due to the fact that Fifth had failed to score in its four previous games. Coach Briggs' eleven garnered an early lead of seven points and was holding this advantage as late as the fourth quarter when Coach Gross' machine overtook it to win by a 14-7 count.

ROX HELD TO TIE

Another upset marked the McKees Rocks-Crafton tussle. McKees Rocks, beaten only by New Castle by a 6-0 count, was a big favorite over Weinrichs' team, but the best it could do against Crafton was a 7-7 deadlock.

Dick Toline's Munhall eleven proved the first victim of the season for Tarentum. Dropping six straight games, Tarentum provided one of the big upsets of the Friday program by swamping Munhall, 20-6, for its initial victory of the season.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF LAST SATURDAY: THE NEW BRIDGE IS THE OLDEST BRIDGE IN PARIS—The construction of the New Bridge (Pont Neuf) in Paris was begun May 31, 1578, in the presence of King Henry III, and it was completed in 1604 in the presence of King Henry VI. At the time of the construction, Paris had only two other bridges, the Pont au Change and the Petit Pont, both wooden structures which were destroyed by fire shortly after. The Pont Neuf was the center of Paris gay life in the first centuries of its existence, and it was said in those days that "you can always see on the bridge a white horse, a lady and a monk."

TOP FLIGHT IS RETIRED

BALTIMORE, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Top Flight, the dark brown filly of Cornelius Vanderbilt, which won the Pimlico Futurity Saturday to make racing history, has gone into retirement, the greatest money winner of all 2-year-olds up to now.

T. J. Healey, the trainer, said the filly would be sent back to winter quarters at Red Bank, N. J., until next year when she will run as a 3-year-old.

Top Flight is one of 12 undefeated 2-year-olds to retire. She has won seven races and enters the racing records in company with Rutherford, Tremont, El Rio Rey, Domino, The Butterfly, Colin, Regret, Tryster, Morvich, Sarazen and Vanderpool.

Athletics Recall Seven for Training

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Connie Mack has recalled seven players he farmed out to the minors last spring, and has ordered them to report at Fort Myers, Fla., in march for another attempt.

One of the seven, Outfielder Lou Finney, batted around .500 in a few games he played with the Athletics toward the close of the summer. He spent most of the season at York in the New York-Pennsylvania League along with Eddie Cihocki, Harrisburg; Merrit (Sugar) Cain, Harrisburg, and Bollie M. Carter, Williamsport.

This quartet will be joined by Outfielder Bob Johnson, Portland; Third Baseman Pinky Higgins, San Antonio, and Pitcher Jimmy Deshong, Jersey City.

GAINS STOPS LUTZ

LONDON, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Larry Gains, Toronto Negro, floored Alexander Lutz, Hungarian heavyweight, five times for varying counts last night before the referee halted the carnage in the second round of a scheduled 15-round bout and declared Gains the winner on a technical knockout. Gains holds the British Empire heavyweight championship.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Fame, indeed, is fleeting . . . For instance, they introduced Willie Hoppe in the press box at the Pitt-Carnegie Tech football game Saturday as the "world champion pool player," . . . And did Willie blush! . . . But he wound up thinking it was a plant and suspects Jess Carver . . . . As well he might . . . No wonder Tech scored on Pitt with that Bevevino-to-Graveno forward-passing combination . . . It sounds like a Notre Dame duo . . . Gravy Graveno, by the way, gave an exhibition that should stamp him as a starting player for the Plaid. . . . Pitt couldn't quite figure out at the finish why it didn't function better. . . . Its line play wasn't up to snuff and there were some who thought the boys weren't keyed up while awaiting the Army game of next Saturday. . . . But you can't discount that Tech fight that has held Purdue to 13 points, Notre Dame to 19 and Pitt to 14 in the last three games, or a total of less than Notre Dame rolled up in beating Penn, 49-0, last Saturday.

Willie Hoppe

The big game season opens in this state this week, and we don't mean the Pitt-Army game, either . . . But there'll be plenty of bear stories around, nevertheless . . . It was only with the greatest restraint that the inmates of the inclosed press box at the Stadium could keep Willie Hoppe from climbing down onto the field between the halves last Saturday and giving an exhibition of trick and fancy shots, using one of the goal posts as a cue and the announcer as a billiard ball . . . He was reminded that the Stadium may belong to the people, but the goal posts are owned by the bondholders.

Another week gone and no new manager named for the Pirates . . . Such a life! . . . The betting is that Pitt will beat Army and you'll be sitting in an end seat . . . Asked how Harvard managed to beat out Dartmouth in the closing minutes of their battle, the office wag replied, "Barry Wood!" . . . And so would you help to pitch a bimbo like that out of the window after pulling one like that on a busy Saturday night with the St. Olaf-Gustavus Adolphus score not yet in and the readers clamoring for it.

George (Pancakes) Panka, Homestead heavyweight boxer, has altered his training methods entirely and says he'll surprise the fans when he returns to Motor Square Garden to box Jimmy Braddock in the main bout two weeks from tonight . . . He adopted the plan from Max Schmeling, the heavyweight champion, whom he served as a sparring partner at Conneaut Lake when the German was training for his bout with Young Stribling in Cleveland last summer . . . According to George, Schmeling works only sparingly when he is preparing for a bout.

"My own training program was all wrong. I can see now, in the light of the success Schmeling has obtained from his system," Panka says . . . "I used to box six or eight rounds and go through calisthenics for several more and also go on the road, with the result I was working from 10 to 15 rounds daily preparing for a 10-round bout . . . And then when I

ACTION MARKS SOCCER TILTS

Real action marked the playing of the league and West Penn cup tie games on local soccer fields yesterday afternoon.

In the cup ties, Morgan had an easy time defeating National Tube, 6 goals to 0; German Sport traveled to Duquesne to beat the Republican Club, 3 goals to 0; Cedar Grove swamped Thoms Run, 5 to 2, and Moon Run nosed out Sturgeon, 2 goals to 1.

The big surprise came in the Keystone League. Bridgeville went to Gallatin to beat the home club in a wonderful game, 1 goal to 0. Last week Gallatin was defeated by the same score in a cup tie.

The Morrys, of Castle Shannon, went down to defeat at the hands of an oldtime rival, Curry, 3 goals to 0, before a splendid crowd.

South Hills-Carrick Game at Oliver High

The battle between South Hills High and Carrick High for the Section II championship will be played at Oliver High Field instead of Allderdice, as previously announced.

Officials of the two schools agreed to play the contest at Oliver. Schenley meets Peabody for the Section I title at Malone Field the same afternoon.

The winners will meet in a post-season game for the title on Friday, November 20.

PANTHERS BEAT TECH; PURPLE IN COMEBACK

By JESS CARVER

Intercollegiate football prepares for the battles of the second week of November with five major elevens among the undefeated; three outstanding individual performers certain to gain all-America consideration (Wood of Harvard, Schwartz of Notre Dame and Catfish Smith of Georgia), and with a little West Virginia school, Davis-Elkins, riding along high, wide and handsome, unscored on and unbeaten, and likely to remain so.

Saturday's contests along all sectors were interesting and exciting, but aside from Northwestern's gallant comeback against Minnesota, in which the Purple practically sewed up the Big Ten title, none of the struggles meant much as far as clarifying championship situations was concerned.

Here in Pittsburgh, some 32,000 viewed a remarkable game in which an underrated Carnegie eleven played Pitt's powerful team to almost a standstill, deserved most of the credit of the game and gave the vaunted Panthers a stiffer argument than even the 14-6 score might indicate.

PITT LINE WEAK

It has been a long time since a Pitt line looked as poor as the Blue and Gold forward wall did against the embattled Tartans. Fearing the Tartan aerial game, the Pitt secondary was reluctant to move up and support the first line of defense. Carnegie's quarterbacks realized this and with a dazzling displaying of deceptive plays, ripped hole after hole in the Pitt wall, until the secondary simply had to come up, and then spread it again with dangerous aerials.

It might just be possible that Coach Sutherland's first team is suffering from a lack of work. It had played together as a unit, up until Saturday, only once since the West Virginia game. The reserves were used against Western Reserve and Penn State, with the Notre Dame setback intervening. There was little cohesion and drive evidenced by the Panthers against Tech; the backs went well at times but fumbles by three different players, Clark, Heller and Luch, spoiled driving attacks that might have resulted in scores and even the heady Ralph Daugherty was feinted out of position time and again when he was backing up the line.

The Panthers better had improve in all departments over their form against Tech if they hope to beat Army this week. They won't be meeting a smarter team or one with a more diversified attack, but the Cadets will be better reserved and generally heavier and more powerful than Carnegie. They can't have any more fight and drive—no eleven in the land could have made a gamer or better laid attempt against the Panthers than Carnegie.

HARVARD UNBEATEN

The six leading elevens of the country are Harvard, Cornell, Syracuse and Notre Dame, Georgia and Southern California. Harvard has Holy Cross and Yale remaining to be played. If Barry Wood can hold his Crimsons together, maybe he'll pilot an unbeaten eleven. Cornell has two tough [illegible] in Dartmouth and Penn, though the latter was pretty [illegible] softened up by Notre Dame Saturday.

Notre Dame, with Southern California, Army and Navy remaining, can figure on sure wins over the service elevens, but will have a tough afternoon Saturday after next with the Trojans, who generally go as well in the Middle West as they do on the Coast. Syracuse, up against Colgate and Columbia, will be lucky to escape with an even break and Georgia, ruling the roost in the South, and with triumphs over Yale and New York U., has a trio of rugged ones left in Tulane, Auburn and Georgia Tech.

Harvard and Northwestern were the teams to pull tough ones out

This is the night Buckets McTiernan, Swissvale's most distinguished (who said extinguished?) citizen, parades himself before us plain folks as a middleweight man of fighting parts in the 10-round main bout at Motor Square Garden against a young Jewish fellow from New York by the name of Ben Jeby.

Ben Jeby

Which reminds us of a story. Stop us—if you can—in the event you've heard it before.

It concerns the early days of Joe Dundee, when the latter was fighting his way up to the welterweight championship of the world. His astute manager, Max Waxman, of Baltimore, matched him with Jack Zivic, Pittsburgh's bearcat, who was a sensation in the division at the time.

UNDAUNTED BY 'REP'

"Do you want to know why I'm taking a flier with my Joey against that mugg, Zivic?" he asked.

Well, no one present did, so he went on to elaborate.

"I'll tell you," he said. "I look up this bozo, Zivic, in the record book, and I see where, some time or other, he was in there with a bimbo named K. O. Jitney, and I say to myself, I say, 'Any orinoco who'll fight a guy named K. O. Jitney, which is only a half a dime in any language, my Joey can beat, and that's why I'm sending my Joey-Joe against this Zivic egg.'"

And that's just about the way Buckets (Buck, to you) McTiernan feels about any cookie who'll enter the ring handicapped by a moniker like Ben Jeby, which isn't his right name, at that, and isn't even pronounced to rhyme with Heebie-Jeeby, but rather with Hebby-Jebby.

LIKES TOUGH ONES

McTiernan hasn't been out for a public workout since the second time he was flattened by Jimmy Belmont at the Meyers Bowl last summer. He's taken a long rest and put on weight, and, he hopes, strength and stamina. That stamina is a good word, even if half of the clucks who follow the fight racket pronounce it the way it's spelled. He knows Ben is supposed to be a big shot, who has beaten Len Harvey and Ignacio Ara, who has folded up Buck himself, but fighting big shots is one of McTiernan's admirable weaknesses. He can't be bothered fighting fellows of little reputation because they almost invariably beat him, while the bigwigs run truer to form and Buck looks at his best against them.

Well, anyway, as we said eight paragraphs back, Buck, who reformed, or was reformed, as a welterweight, is back tonight as a middleweight, and Manager Joe Mazer and Matchmaker Jules Beck, of the Garden, invite you to come to his little coming-out party, accompanied by anything from one buck to three to pay the freight, and they promise not to turn you away if you are so equipped.

MOORE VS. TRACEY AGAIN

Jimmy Moore, of the Hill, and Jack Tracey, of the North Side, Negro middleweight rivals, are down for eight rounds of skull-cracking in the semi-final, with Tracey already holding one win over Jimmy. Long Tom Williams, Negro heavyweight sparring mate of McTiernan, and Frank Novak, of the North Side, box the second bout, and Georgie Bretsch, North Side welterweight, and Davy Grove, of Canton, O., meet in the first six-rounder, with Frankie Moss, of Duquesne, and Mike Bazzone, of McKeesport, light-heavies, quarreling over the four-round route in the opener at 8:30.

MANDELL PURSE HELD

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Sammy Mandell, former lightweight champion of the world, must appear before the Illinois State Athletic Commission today to show cause why his $1,250 purse for boxing Ralph Lenny, Union City, N. J., last Wednesday, should not be forfeited. Mandell was ordered out of the ring after the bout had been declared no contest.

MOSE KELSCH MAKING GAIN AGAINST WEST VIEW IN 7-0 VICTORY

TOURNEY DRAWS LARGE FIELD

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

A large entry is indicated for the Armistice Day golf tourney, to be held at the Edgewood Country Club Wednesday, the proceeds of which are to be donated to the Allegheny County Fund for the Relief of the Unemployed.

Entries are being received at the club between the hours of 10 a. m. and 8 p. m., today and tomorrow. Contestants will be limited to players who are members of clubs affiliated with the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association, and clubs indorsed by the district governing body.

The Edgewood Country Club has provided prizes for low net and low gross scores; ample provision also has been made by Manager Eddie Schoettle for dining room and grill service.

A green fee of $2 will be charged, but the whole of it will be turned over to the relief fund. Starting times may be secured in advance, but those golfers who do not make reservations may play by registering at the club upon their arrival.

Players without starting times will be teed off in foursomes in the order of their registration.

BAKER, MACE COP

Edgewood has requested that those who are forced by circumstance to cancel starting times, phone such cancelations promptly for obvious reasons. Play will begin at 8 a. m., and will be limited to 65 foursomes, or 260 players.

It marks the sole effort of Western Pennsylvania golf to assist in unemployment relief.

J. B. Baker came through to grab honors in the morning, and J. Z. Mace captured the afternoon's laurels, in the sweepstakes held by Professional Jimmy O'Donnell at Edgewood yesterday. Baker had a net 73 to win in the morning, and Mace's net 73 was good enough in the afternoon. The scores of the leaders:

Morning, first division — J. B. Baker, 82-9-73; E. A. Gerberding, 93-15-78. Second division — C. H. Brinker, 90-18-72; S. N. Kinter, 91-17-74.

RAMSAY RENOMINATED

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—H. H. Ramsay has been nominated to succeed himself as president of the United States Golf Association by its nominating committee.

The entire slate of officers, inducted into office with him last January, again was renominated with Robert M. Cutting and Rodman E. Griscom as vice presidents; Prescott S. Bush, secretary; Charles H. Sabin, treasurer, and Livingston Platt, counsel.

Melvin A. Traylor, of Chicago, was nominated as chairman of the 1932 nominating committee with Henry B. Heyburn, Roger D. Lapham, H. C. Mackall and Challen R. Parker as members of the committee.

Between Rounds

Baby Stribling, younger brother of Young Stribling, boxes Bob Allison, of Charlotte, N. C., at Bluefield, W. Va., Friday night of next week.

Ray Eberle is hoping for a sellout at his first amateur boxing show in Croatian Hall, Ambridge, tomorrow night. He has Dominic Buffalino and Billy Smith in the main bout.

Promoter Jim McGirr, of McKeesport, still is at work on a card for next Thursday night. He hopes to line up another double windup offering at popular prices.

Promoter Jim McGirr, of McKeesport, has signed Joey Spiegal, of Uniontown, and Gene Baldoni, of York, Pa., for one of two 10-round bouts Thursday night.

HAKOAHS WIN

PIMLICO MUTUELS

BALTIMORE, Nov. 9.—(Special.)—The mutuels on the seven races at the Pimlico race track Saturday paid a total of $238.80.

GRID SITUATION IS UNCHANGED

of the old fire Sat'day. Barry Wood had to toss a 40-yard pass and kick a field goal to enable Harvard to nose out Dartmouth, and Northwestern, led by Pug Rentner, scored 19 points in the fourth quarter to squelch Minnesota.

GENEVA BEATS JACKETS

In the tri-state district, Geneva set the stage for a championship battle with Allegheny this week at Meadville by beating Waynesburg, 19-6, ending the winning streak of the Jackets and knocking them from the Class B title race. Allegheny nosed out St. Bonaventure by the margin of a successful point after touchdown.

West Virginia Wesleyan gave West Virginia all the football it wanted, but lost to the heavier and larger Mountaineer squad, 14-7. Cliff Battles was the star of the game, even in defeat. He's the outstanding individual player in this district.

Duquesne met Holy Cross and gave a good account of itself, even though the Worcester eleven was composed of reserves for a portion of the game. The Dukes fought hard and refused to be routed and in the final period, had two offenses stopped inside the five-yard line.

Wash-Jeff dropped its third game in a row, losing this time to Marquette. The Westerners rallied in the last half to land the triumph.

EDINBORO SUCCEEDS

After 20 years of trying, Edinboro Teachers finally won over Slippery Rock, taking a 6-0 win at Edinboro. Morris-Harvey nosed out Bethany, 7-0, and what Thiel did to Westminster was a fright. Grove City stumbled about for the first period of the game with John Carroll in Cleveland, but pulled together to win, 12-0. Marshall rolled up a score of 60-0 over Fairmont, and West Liberty outdid the Hawleymen by crushing Bethel College, 89-0. In this game, Campiglia, Liberty backfield star, scored 10 touchdowns and booted eight placement goals for extra points.

Davis-Elkins kept its goal line unsullied by beating St. Thomas at Scranton. The Hurricane hasn't been beaten, tied or scored upon, and has one of the lightest elevens since Cam Henderson became coach.

Pitt and Tech planned light workouts today in preparation for their tough games this week, Pitt against Army and Tech against Temple in Philadelphia. The Dukes will be idle until next week, when they tackle the strong, unbeaten North Dakota Braves at Forbes Field.

If superstition is to be taken into consideration, the Panthers hold a big edge over their Army opponents of Saturday. The military academy's team is due to arrive on Friday—which is the 13th. The Cadets will detrain here at 8:30 a. m.

DEAD HEAT RACED

AUTEUIL, France, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Filidor, owned by J. S. Josephs, and Rebenil, owned by H. Boulanger, ran a dead heat in the Prix d'Automne, the hurdle race which featured yesterday's racing card at Auteuil. Tartempion finished third.

D. & E. RETAINS SCORING LEAD

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—The East's unbeaten football brigade has dwindled to nine, with Davis and Elkins College, of Elkins, W. Va., still in the van.

The West Virginians have won eight straight games. Syracuse has accounted for seven, and Cornell, Harvard and Johns Hopkins for six each. Four other elevens, Fordham, Temple, Bucknell and Allegheny are undefeated, but have been tied at least once.

Davis and Elkins still maintains a strangle hold on scoring honors, both defensive and offensive. The Scarlet Hurricane has run up the staggering total of 299 points against none for the opposition.

PANTHERS FIFTH

Cornell stands second in scoring with 232, Syracuse third with 231, West Liberty, of West Virginia, fourth with 229, and Columbia and Pittsburgh tied for fifth with 214. Three others, New York University, Marshall and Catholic, have passed the 200 mark. Hobart has permitted the most scoring—240 points in seven games.

In a remarkable feat of scoring that placed him head and shoulders above all the other ball carriers of the East, Bob Campiglio, of West Liberty State College, of West Virginia, scored 68 points against Bethel, of Kentucky, Saturday, and took the lead in the eastern football scoring race with a total of 140 points.

With one more game to play, Campiglio is only five points behind the mark made last year by Len Macaluso, of Colgate, leader of the nation's scorers.

Louis Bush, of Massachusetts State, former leader, was held scoreless, but held second place, where he formerly had led with 96 points and 15 touchdowns. Jim Murphy, of Fordham, came up to take third place on the eastern list with 89 points.

MANDERS TOPS BIG TEN

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Jack Manders, Minnesota's fullback, failed to beat Northwestern all by himself, Saturday, but his 14 points gave him a total of 32 for the season in Big Ten competition and the individual scoring leadership of the league.

40,000 See U. S. Nine Win in Japan

TOKIO, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Although it lost the game to a team of American major and minor league barnstormers, the Meiji University baseball team set 40,000 Japanese fans to cheering wildly today by hitting Lefty Grove, Philadelphia Athletics' hurler, for two singles, and George Kelly, minor league player, for a double. The Americans won the game, 4-0.

Al Simmons hit a home run and Frank O'Doul a three-bagger. The score:

RECORD ATTEMPT FAILS

KOSICE, Czechoslovakia, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Jose Zabala, star Argentine distance runner, failed yesterday in an attempt to beat Paavo Nurmi's one-hour running record of 19,210 meters, but easily outdistanced a field of a half-dozen European runners. After covering 18,600 meters in an hour's running over a heavy track, Zabala was too exhausted to continue his attempt to break the record for 20,000 meters.

ST. MARY'S BEATEN

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—St. Mary's brilliant gridiron record was shattered yesterday when the Gaels suffered their first defeat of the season, a 10-to-0 setback, by the Olympic club of San Francisco.

ROONEYS COP SECOND WEST PENN TITLE

By TOM BIRKS

A battling crew of West View gridders went to defeat at the hands of the J. P. Rooneys, 7 to 0, at Bridgeville Speedway, yesterday, in the feature game of the West Penn Football Conference. The Big Green machine scored in the last minutes of play, Mose Kelsch plowing through the Red line for the only touchdown of the contest.

The victory gave the Rooneys their second West Penn title. Adding two points for the Rooneys second game with the East Pittsburgh Firemen, they have 16 points. The best Burns can do is 15, providing they beat the Rooneys and West View.

Four thousand fans sat through an ideal game, on an ideal day, to watch Paul Muzzio's rejuvenated team put up its greatest game of the season.

KELSCH SHINES

The game also proved that Mose Kelsch is still the peer of them all when it comes to getting yardage in the goal area.

An exchange of punts in the last period found Auchter kicking to Jimmy Rooney on the West View 35-yard line. A march then started and Kelsch went over, Jimmy Rooney booting the extra point.

Clark, Auchter and Nick Mehler played great football for West View. Muzzio suffered a big loss in the first period when Boots Klinzing had to leave the game with a leg injury. Boots had been going great.

Mose Lance and Kemp showed well in the Rooney line. Toots Sweeney and Harp Vaughan easily were the best ball carriers for the champions.

The Rooneys carried the ball over the goal line in the third period, but an offside play stopped the score.

PAPALES DEFEATED

Oakland Community provided the big upset in the Lightweight Conference by handing the East Liberty Papales their first defeat of the season.

The Oaklanders scored when Collins ran back a punt 65 yards for a touchdown, and then kicked the point that won the ballgame.

In other Lightweight Conference conflicts, the Sonny Boys barely beat the Broadway Mounts, 7-6; Allison Park blanked the J. J. Veronas, 12-0; Rox Rangers topped the Armstrong Bulldogs, 32-0; the Etna Sycamores won over Christy Park, 6-0; Union lost to the Oakmont Panthers, 8-0; Pleasant Valley beat the Glendale Tigers, 12-7, and the North Side Traders upset DeRoy, 37-0.

Important contests in the independent ranks found the Baehr Olympics trimming the Mingo Indians, 26-0; McChesneytown meeting a blank defeat, 7-0, at the hands of Millvale Amici; Tarentum Firemen trouncing the Evergreen Olympics, 32-0, and the Carrick Odds bumping the Twenty-Seventh Ward, 13-0.

BELTZHOOVER VICTOR

In other battles, Beltzhoover, Snee, Charleston Trojans, Aliquippa Indians, Chimac, Pitcairn, Hahn, Westlake Odds, North Braddock Firemen, Library Tigers, Farrell, Knapels, East End Athletics, Filo, East Pittsburgh Dase, Blawnox, Island Pros, Turtle Creek Panthers, Arsenal Ramblers and Pittock scored triumphs.

Two Teams Share Six-Day Race Lead

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Reggie McNamara and Learco Guerra, the Italian-American team, were tied for first place with Alfred Letourner and Marcel Guimbretiere, the French team, in Chicago's 26th international six-day bicycle race here today.

Seventy-five laps were gained in the first night and early morning of racing. McNamara celebrated his 44th birthday with the start of last night's race and it also marked the start in his 73rd six-day grind.

Trailing the field by two laps was the strong Italian-Belgian combination of Franco Georgetti and Gerard Debaets while three laps back were: Cecil Walker and Harris Horder, Bobby Walthour and Norman Hill, Franz Deulberg and Bill Grimm.

Wisconsin Slashes Football Prices

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 9.—(AP.)—The University of Wisconsin athletic department has announced 5,000 seats at Camp Randall Stadium will sell for $2 rather than $3 for the homecoming game with Ohio State Saturday.

The reduction in price was attributed to "general financial conditions," the department said. Attendance of more than 40,000 is expected.

CUMMINGS RACE VICTOR

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Bill Cummings, Indianapolis automobile race driver, captured the 100-lap feature event at the Legion Ascot Speedway yesterday. His time was 48 minutes 42 2-5 seconds. Arvel Brunmier won the Italian Helmet dash, a special two-lap event open to the three fastest qualifying cars, in 54.75 seconds.

JACKETS OPEN LEAGUE RACE THURSDAY

Games This Week

INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE
Wednesday—Cleveland at London; Detroit at Buffalo.
Thursday—Syracuse at Pittsburgh.
Saturday — Pittsburgh at Cleveland; Buffalo at Syracuse.

NATIONAL LEAGUE
Saturday — Boston at Montreal Maroons; Canadiens at Toronto.

By CARL W. SHATTO

With the Yellow Jackets slated to get their first taste of action in the championship race against Syracuse here Thursday night, it appears the local entry in the International League competition, which is to get under way with Cleveland at London and Detroit at Buffalo, Wednesday, will be in fine fettle for the opener, if their showing against the Chicago Hawks, of the National League, in an exhibition contest, Saturday night, is to be taken as a criterion.

Although the Hawks, who have been in training here for some time, scored seven goals on the Jacket icemen, the locals showed a wealth of fight, spirit and skill in their first attempt at scrimmage in competition, after having practiced only three days.

The National League race will open on Thursday night with two teams less than it finished with last season. Ottawa and Philadelphia are among the missing. The International circuit remains intact.

The Hawks and Yellow Jackets clash again tomorrow night in exhibition conflict, and Coach Charley Reid expects to have his squad in improved physical condition for that encounter. Herb Drury, former local star, who made his debut as a referee Saturday night, again will act as arbiter. His work Saturday night was splendid.

The Jackets travel to Cleveland Saturday for their second league game, while, on the same evening, Buffalo invades the confines of Syracuse. Windsor plays Detroit Sunday.

SCHOOL GRID RACE CLOSE

first victory of the season at the expense of Masontown All-Saints, 13-6. It marked the first points scored by Point Marion this season.

East Pike Run provided another of last week's upsets by nosing out Al Wildman's Fayette City eleven. Winning six out of its first seven games, the only defeat coming at the hands of Charleroi, 6-0, Fayette City was picked to defeat East Pike Run, but at the finish of a gruelling engagement, the final tally showed the underdog on the long end of a 7-6 score.

TITLES AT STAKE

Interest this weekend centers on the two championship games in the City League Friday. In Section I, Schenley entertains Peabody at Malone Field, while in Section II, Carrick and South Hills battle at Allderdice Field. All teams are undefeated in City League competition.

Saturday finds Washington engaged with Turtle Creek Union at Washington and the Little Presidents must pass this test to remain in the W. P. I. A. L. fight. Homestead will attempt to check the McKeesport march at McKeesport, while Aliquippa faces Clairton at Clairton and Ambridge plays Midland at Ambridge.

Coach Lomond, Midland coach, took in the recent Ambridge-Stowe game to get a few pointers on the Rubenstein eleven. This game should prove the outstanding attraction of the day as both teams are undefeated.

The entire party now is in Europe. It will open an American tour in Madison Square Garden, New York, November 18.

The Coach's Viewpoint

By Howard Harpster

Geneva College Coach and Former All-America Star at Carnegie Tech.

When the rulemakers added the forward pass as a legal part of offensive football some years ago, they created an entirely different type of play and changed the game from an uninteresting charging mass to the spectacular open game that is played today.

Howard Harpster

There is no doubt that, next to blocking, the forward pass is the most important phase of any offense. If a team does not use the forward pass at least as a threat, then, that team's running attack will be much less effective, for the opponents naturally will play their defense in very close.

Football, in a sense, is like a game of checkers in that the team with the ball is constantly attempting to maneuver the opposition out of position. If the defense has moved in close, in an attempt to stop the opponent's running attack, the offensive team's quarterback usually drives it back by throwing forward passes, which are comparatively easy to complete against such a defense. Then, when the defensive backs have spread, watching for the passes, the quarterback brings them in close again by changing to a running attack, which is much more effective against a spread defense. The theory of the above attack, of course, is based on the fact that the defensive backs can only be in a certain position at one time.

Many critics are prone to discredit the passing game and base their judgment of two teams' strength almost entirely upon the ground gained from their running attack. This view is hardly fair, for, while it appears comparatively easy to gain ground by passing, as compared with gaining the same amount by running, it is in reality just as difficult. There also is the risk on every forward pass that one of the opponents might intercept the ball before it reaches its intended destination.

In picking out a few of last Saturday's games, it is surprising to find that in almost each contest the forward pass was either directly or indirectly responsible for the scores. In the Pitt-Carnegie game, there were three touchdowns. Two of these were with forward passes and the third was a direct result of a pass. Harvard defeated Dartmouth, 7 to 6, and both touchdowns were scored by forward passes. Illinois lost to Wisconsin by the same figures, making its six points on a pass play. Princeton's only score against Lehigh come from a forward pass. Geneva won from Waynesburg, 19 to 6, and all four scores were made after receiving forwards. Purdue walloped Centenary and made four of its seven touchdowns on pass plays, while Bucknell won from Georgetown, 7 to 6, as a result of a pass.

From the above results, it is very evident that forward-passing is being successfully employed by many teams. The public wants to see the open type of play, and the passing game makes such an offense possible. Therefore, since almost all of the teams are using passes, the public is getting what it wants, and, for this reason, I can't see the logic of an argument of a certain writer who recently said in the papers that football is going to die out within the next few years.

LEOPARDS NEXT FOR LIONS

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Nov. 9.—A football rivalry that began back in the days of nose guards and revolving wedges will be renewed at Easton on Saturday, when the Penn State football team invades the Lafayette campus for the fourteenth game in the gridiron history of the two institutions. Penn State and Lafayette first met in 1889, shortly after football became an intercollegiate sport at Penn State.

During the next decade the teams played about every other year, closing the first span in the series of 1898, a three-game series covering the years 1914, 1915 and 1916 followed. The teams did not meet again until 1927, when the present series began.

Of the 13 games, Penn State has won nine, Lafayette three, and one was a tie; this tie game was played last year, the first season as head coach at Penn State for Bob Higgins. Higgins was a player against Lafayette in the three games in 1914, 1915 and 1916, all of which were won by the Lions.

Herb McCracken, Lafayette coach, had charge of the summer session coaching classes here for several years and played against Penn State teams while a student at Pitt.

FINAL CHARITY RACE

BALTIMORE, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Maryland's fifth and final charity racing day has been fixed for November 30 at Bowie. The fall meet at that track is concluded Saturday, November 28, but horses and jockeys will remain over the week-end for a Monday program.

TWO 300-POINT BLOCKS SLATED FOR TODAY

The stage is set for the opening skirmish this afternoon as Welker Cochran, veteran star, begins defense of his 18.1 balkline billiard world championship against the cue champion of champions, Willie Hoppe, in the William Penn parlors, 536 Smithfield street.

The world championship will be decided only after 3,600 points have been attained. The challenger makes his first test of the champion at 3 o'clock this afternoon and a second at 8 o'clock this evening. For each meeting today, and thereafter each afternoon and evening until Saturday, Cochran and Hoppe will match skill in blocks of 300 points.

The titular match will have a noted umpire, Harry Geisel, of the American League, connected with the Board of Trade parlors in Indianapolis, for the last decade, as referee.

Cochran and Hoppe have been tuning up here during the last week, playing exhibition contests against local stars. Each pronounces himself ready for the week's play.

HENLEY PRO VICTOR

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Jack Henley, of Des Moines, Ia., won the northern sectional professional three-cushion billiard tournament held here. In the final rounds, Henley defeated Ray Palmer, Milwaukee, 50 to 40, and Earl Lookabaugh, Chicago, 50 to 42.

OPEN TEST WON BY M'FARLANE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Shooting only four strokes over par for 54 holes, Willie MacFarlane, 1925 National Open champion, won the first National Capital Open golf tournament yesterday at the Kenwood Country Club in nearby Maryland.

The Oak Ridge professional from Tuckahoe, N. Y., had a score of 214 for the three 18-hole rounds, getting a par 70 and a 72 yesterday to add to his 72 in the qualifying round Saturday.

He bested a field of 61 qualifiers to bag the lion's share of the $2,550 prize money and was six strokes better than his nearest rivals, Tommy Armour, British Open champion, and Sol DiBuano, Bonnie Briar pro from Larchmont, N. Y., with scores of 220.

Armour broke the course record with a 68 in the morning, but took a 74 in the afternoon to remain six strokes behind the winner.

went into the ring I was all burned out, lacking in reserve energy and with no recuperative powers. Taking a leaf from Schmeling's book, I now am doing just enough work to toughen me up and keep me on edge, and I am confident the results will justify my switch."

Young Jack Thompson, who recently lost the world welterweight title to Lou Brouillard in a bout in Boston, plans to continue in the ring as a middleweight. Harold Farese, former featherweight boxer, is the manager of Jerry Mecadon, who recently knocked out Ruby Goldstein in Newark, N. J., and is known as the Jersey Slasher.

All of the Jersey City papers gave Harry Carlton, a home town boy, the decision in his no-decision bout with Tony Herrera there last Monday night and rapped Tony and his manager, Ray Alvis, for insisting that the formality of an official decision be dispensed with . . . And Herrera, receiving a $1,000 guarantee, netted exactly 125 per cent of the gate, probably a record, the promoter going for a substantial loss on his $800 intake.

Duke defeated Kentucky at Lexington Saturday, 7-0, when Crawford, Duke end, tackled Johnson, Kentucky halfback, so hard that he dislodged the ball from the latter's grasp and Harton, Duke right tackle, caught the oval before it hit the ground and scampered 15 yards for the only touchdown.

STOCK MARKET RISES IN FAST TRADING

Rails Reluctant to Join in Advance Finally Whipped Into Line by Bull Prices

NEW YORK, Nov. 9—(AP.)—Rail shares were whipped into line in another bull drive in today's stock market.

The carrier issues were recalcitrant for a time in the morning, and threatened to upset the campaign for higher prices but were driven swiftly higher after mid-day along with steels, utilities, food shares and others which had made earlier advances. Trading continued close to Saturday's hectic pace.

Union Pacific surged up more than 5 points. Santa Fe converted an early loss of 2 points into a gain of large extent. Miscellaneous issues rising 2 to 4 points included United States Steel, Inland Steel, Gulf States Steel, New York Central, New Haven, Baltimore and Ohio, Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific, American Telephone, North American, Consolidated Gas, American Water Works, Eastman, National Biscuit, Corn Products, Dupont, Allied Chemical, International Silver, Homestake Mining and others.

Wall Street was again cheered by the action of the commodities, with silver rising to a new high for the year for the fourth successive session, wheat again absorbing a large volume of profit-taking without difficulty and cotton pushing up despite a larger than expected gain shown by the government crop estimate.

Steel shares were again helped by sunnier reports from the steel trade. "Steel" reported another slight quickening of operations, now at the best rate since September. With some of the larger automobile makers slated to go into production of new models within the next few weeks, the basic steel industry is confident of increasing business from one of its principal customers.

The money market was again easier. While there were no important changes in actual rates, there was some shading of the longer maturities of bankers acceptances, and the demand for commercial paper apparently exceeded the supply. The recent fears that the depression might be prolonged by a credit pinch now seems to have subsided completely.

COTTON PRICE SHOWS GAIN

NEW YORK, Nov. 9—Cotton opened barely steady today at a decline of 7 to 12 points on relatively easier Liverpool cables. Southern selling and selling for New Orleans account. Trading was rather active and offerings were absorbed by covering and trade buying, with prices rallying 3 to 4 points during the first minutes of trading.

December, which sold off to 6.53 under the initial pressure, rallied to 6.60, while March advanced from 6.72 to 6.82 and the general list was within 2 or 3 points of Saturday's closing quotations at the end of the first hour.

Liverpool cables say that hedging has been taken by covering in that market and reported production of cotton yarn increasing.

The carded cloth statistics showing an increase of 4.5 per cent in stocks but also an increase of 51.7 per cent in unfilled orders made a favorable impression on sentiment, which probably helped to sustain the market in advance of the government report. When the market closed to receive the crop figures, December was selling around 6.58c and March 6.78c, or about 4 to 6 points net lower, and while the government crop indication of 16,903,000 bales was slightly above the average of recent expectations, offerings were readily absorbed when the market reopened.

December after some irregularity, sold up to 6.86c and March to 7.10c, making net advances of about 20 to 26 points on the active positions on trade buying and covering. This bulge was not fully maintained as offerings increased slightly later in the morning but the midday market was fairly steady and 10 to 13 points net higher. Ginnings prior to November 1 were reported to be 12,129,456 bales.

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 9.—Cotton—Spot, good business done; prices 2 points lower; quotations in pence: American strict good middling, 5.70; good middling, 5.30; strict middling, 5.10; middling, 4.98; strict low middling, 4.88; low middling, 4.75; strict good ordinary, 4.55; good ordinary, 4.25. No receipts. Futures closed steady. December, 4.77; January, 4.78; March, 4.81; May, 4.86; July, 4.91; October, 4.98; December, 5.02.

SILVER SELLS AT NEW HIGH

NEW YORK, Nov. 9—Trading in silver futures on the National Metal Exchange is active, with sales totaling 167 lots, or 4,175,000 ounces. Prices show advances of 60 to 195 points.

Forbes

Commodity and Security Prices Move Forward.

—By B. C. FORBES—

B. C. Forbes

A MONTH AGO the opinion was expressed in this column that the low price level recorded on October 5 would not be duplicated in the next five years or perhaps 10 years.

Since then the general price level has advanced impressively.

That the nadir of depression has been reached and passed is becoming the almost universal conclusion.

A word of moderation needs to be sounded especially concerning wheat.

LARGE SCALE speculation has played a pronounced part in fostering the sensational rise. These powerful speculators doubtless will at some stage of the rise sell out and perhaps launch a terrific bear attack. Excitement over wheat's possibilities unquestionably has been fanned by the precarious Manchurian situation, particularly the threatening attitude of Russia. Moreover there has been a suspicious suddenness in the transformation of the interpretation put upon wheat conditions and statistics throughout the world.

The writer is assured by men well versed on Japan that she feels she must acquire more territory as an outlet for her overflowing population and that her intention is to expand her foothold in Manchuria if such action can be accomplished short of bringing on universal opposition. Should Russia enter the field, the clamor for wheat might easily send quotations much higher.

On the other hand, without the impetus of war, those who blindly gamble in wheat may bye and bye have their fingers burned. Quotations are hardly likely to continue daily to repeat Saturday's performance, when most wheat options established new maximum prices for the year.

IN OTHER DIRECTIONS there have been notable price advances uninfluenced by war alarms.

Cotton has recovered 22 per cent from its recent minimum, a consideration of major importance. Corn has gained 25 per cent, although it has been affected by the drastic rise in wheat. Rye and oats likewise have advanced substantially. Beef too moved up last week.

Rubber has moved up appreciably, but is still selling far below cost of production. Silk has joined the procession. So have hides. Oil has shot up spectacularly and leaders in this vital industry are distinctly more optimistic.

Silver, after its prolonged decline to the lowest prices on record, has enjoyed an extraordinary rebound, thus aiding copper mining companies. While speculation has been rampant in silver and while war threats have been a factor, the recent far-reaching abandonment of gold payments warranted improvement in silver prices. As in the case of wheat, however, a switch by speculators from the bull to the bear side could doubtless precipitate a sharp, if only temporary, setback.

THE BETTERMENT in sentiment which has been emphasized here during the last few weeks is now being reflected in the bond and stock market.

Securities, like commodities, were pressed down to utterly abnormal depths. That there would come a vigorous upward movement was certain, the only question being as to when it would set in.

Recent events abroad and at home have fully warranted the upturn. European hallucinations concerning this country's financial strength have vanished. The British election result was interpreted in the highest financial circles as the most momentous occurrence in years. The scramble by Europeans for American gold has ended and a return flow is an early possibility. The Hoover-Laval talks, combined with subsequent activities in France, have created the impression that France is now in a more reasonable frame of mind towards Germany as well as towards Britain, with her impending tariff, and the United States.

At home hoarding has ceased. As forewarned here a week ago, an increase in circulation to take care of month-end requirements was logical. Hysteria among bank depositors has died down and before the year ends a notable increase in bank deposits is wholly probable. Then, too, the National Credit Corporation will start functioning in a practical way this week.

SUCH FAVORABLE developments having occurred in Europe, in our own monetary and banking conditions and in nearly all basic commodities, it would have been astonishing had not the security markets responded cheerfully.

The writer looks for ups and downs until the general recovery has made more headway. After that an outburst of bullishness greater than anything now imagined may be witnessed. The fall having been carried so absurdly far, the rise may become correspondingly pronounced once the whole public become convinced that the depression is over and prosperity and employment are on the way.

RYE QUICKLY RISES CENT

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Except rye, all grains tended downward early today. Rye scored a quick advance of one cent. Bears laid stress on Liverpool reports of heavy sales of Australian wheat to Europe and on prospects of drought relief in United States winter wheat territory southwest. Rye strength was ascribed to possibilities that the market would catch fire in case of sudden large export purchases. Opening ¾ to 2 cents lower, wheat afterward rallied somewhat. Corn started ¼ to 1⅛ off and subsequently held near the initial limits.

At first, sellers of wheat far outnumbered buyers, but a resumption of aggressive purchasing was witnessed on declines to below 70 cents for May delivery.

The amount of wheat on ocean passage was announced to have decreased more than 500,000 bushels the last week, notwithstanding that world shipments had increased about 3,500,000 bushels. This was taken to indicate heavily augmented consumer demand overseas.

LARGER COTTON CROPS SEEN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—A cotton crop of 16,903,000 bales of 500-pound gross weight is indicated by the Department of Agriculture as of November 1. This compares with a production indicated October 1 of 16,284,000 bales and with a final 1930 output of 13,932,000. Final outturn of cotton will depend upon whether the various influences affecting the crop during the remainder of the season are more or less favorable than usual.

Upon the 40,889,000 acres for harvest in 1931, September 1 estimate, the indicated crop would approximate a yield of 197.8 pounds of lint cotton an acre, which compares with 190.5 indicated as of October 1. A final yield in 1930 of 147.7 and the 10-year average, 1920-29, of 154.4.

Bureau of the Census reports 12,129,546 running bales, counting round bales as halves, and excluding linters, ginned from the crop of 1931 prior to November 1, compared with ginnings of 10,863,896 to November 1 and 10,891,940 for the corresponding 1929 period.

Early Christmas Buying Urged as Employment Aid

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Earlier Christmas shopping has been suggested by the industrial bureau of the Merchants Association of New York as a means of promoting employment as well as the comfort and convenience of shoppers. Although the holiday shopping period is ordinarily looked on as beginning soon after Thanksgiving, earlier buying this year, the association said, will encourage stores to augment sales forces and retain the extra employes for a longer period.

BANKER REPORT ON SECURITIES OPTIMISTIC

Prices of Foreign Bonds Do Not Show True Values, Investment Men Told

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Nov. 9.—In view of the widespread actual defaults and threatened defaults on interest payments on foreign governmental bonds held by the American public, the report, issued today by the foreign securities committee to the Investment Bankers' Association of America, in convention here, takes on extraordinary popular significance.

Mr. Rukeyser

Inasmuch as the members of the committee represent leading American houses of issue, which underwrote the depreciated dollar bonds, the explanation of the collapse, which has been given by the committee, must be viewed largely in the nature of an apology.

FACTORS EXAGGERATED

The net meaning of the report is that the investment public has exaggerated the adverse factors, and overdiscounted the future status of such obligations.

The argument, as set forth by the committee, consisting of nine investment bankers, headed by Allan M. Pope, of the First National Old Colony Corporation and approved by the board of governors of the association, follows:

"A foreign country, even in default which corresponds to receivership in a corporation, continues as an entity whereas a corporation is often liquidated. The recent trade disturbance has brought about certain defaults. In some cases the depressed state of trade must inevitably have caused the country to fail in its obligations. In other cases curtailment of public expenditures and application of other remedial measures might have, if applied in time, prevented the necessity for failure to meet external obligations.

"In every case remedial measures have been applied, although not always in time.

DEMAND ABSENT

"The general public has failed to recognize that the quoted prices of the securities of many foreign countries do not today represent actual values. Rather they represent the absence of any real market demand."

In referring to approved remedial measures for rehabilitating the finances of depressed countries, the committee added:

"First, every effort is made to stimulate exports; second, imports are curtailed by increasing import tariffs in general and by prohibiting the importation of luxuries and other non-essential articles; third, the exportation of gold is restricted and confined to absolute essentials under government regulation; fourth, foreign balances currency and securities belonging to the nationals of a country are mobilized."

PROPOSES CAPITAL CUT

The New York Stock Exchange has received notice from the American Commercial Alcohol Corporation of a proposed reduction in capital represented by issued common stock to $3,894,950, from $8,769,697, and a change in authorized common stock from 750,000 shares of no-par value to the same number of shares of $10 par value.

STOCK EXCHANGE TOPICS

Sudden revival of popularity of the shares of leading motor car producing companies is not altogether without substantial basis. The period for the wholesale introduction of new models is close at hand with prospect for more than usual display of consumer interest in view of the low rate of new car buying in the last two years. Automobile stocks may be a little premature in seeking to discount the approach of the annual motor show which invariably attracts attention to the group. But Wall street in its changed frame of mind is beginning to discuss the possible influence of pent-up demand resulting from the slump in buying. Average sales prior to 1930 it is calculated were about 3,000,000 cars annually. But 1929 saw heavy overproduction and total output of some 5,600,000 units. In 1930 sales fell to about 2,600,000 cars, and this year promises to register the minimum for many years past with estimates placing the total output somewhat between 1,900,000 and 2,000,000 units.

The feature of the day was the action of the cotton market, where the government's extremely bearish report was completely ignored, the market on the reopening after the usual recess to consume the figures, bulging for a gain of more than $1.50 a bale from the earlier low levels. This rise was staged in face of the official crop estimate, placing the indicated yield on November 1, last, with liberal allowance for possible kill of open cotton at 16,903,000 bales, the second largest in history. The only time such an indicated yield has been exceeded was in 1926, when the crop reached a size never since approached except in this instance, at 17,977,000 bales.

The action of cotton proved very perplexing to the local speculative element which was at a loss to evolve a satisfactory explanation. It was pointed out that there is a potential supply of available cotton sufficient to satisfy the normal average annual consumption for fully two and one-half years. The heavy buying which came into the market was believed to reflect the determination of speculators who had been left behind in wheat and stocks to get aboard. At any rate it was reported the market encountered a tremendous rush of open buying for the account of people who had calculated on catching any dip which might result from selling on the government figures.

The reduction on Saturday of the per well allowable in the East Texas oil field to 125 barrels daily from 150 barrels brought daily production of the field to below 350,000 barrels, according to Gen. Wolthers, commander of the militia in the martial law area. Gov. Sterling, who issued the order for this curtailment, has indicated that it will remain in effect only temporarily. He said he is studying other plans and in particular one that he has devised himself. It is understood this proposed method is a combination of the well and acreage basis, adopting the per well allowable in the intensely drilled areas and the acreage units in the localities which have been but little developed.

Bullish sentiment regarding the immediate outlook for the market was encouraged by the development of noteworthy strength in the rails during the afternoon. New York Central led the upswing in that group, advancing to new high ground on the current movement, while Baltimore and Ohio, Southern Pacific, Pennsylvania and Atchison had substantial upturns. With the rails swinging into line with the advance in pivotal industrials, confidence in the market's underlying position was strengthened and buying activities were pushed with increasing vigor.

The sharp upturn in commodity prices has added more than half a billion dollars to the purchasing power of the American farmer since the grain lows were established on October 5. The result has been an improvement in rural credit which should find reflection in collections of farm equipment companies as well as in their sales.

Boom Value Loan Warning Given Investment Bankers

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Nov. 9.—A plea for financial institutions to discourage the granting of credit based on values resulting from rapid price advances was made by Henry T Ferriss, president of the Investment Bankers' Association of America, at the first general session of the organization's twentieth annual convention today.

Ferriss attributed a major share of the present problems of the investment securities business to this practice during boom years and sounded a note of warning against repetition of this mistake in policy after business reaches more normal conditions.

He declared that the recent period of rising prices was characterized by a tremendous increase in credit. These debts, incurred during a period of high prices, must be paid during a period of lower prices.

The large volume of debts contracted by the various nations during the World War and by various individuals during the boom period prior to the 1929 collapse, constitute one of the chief reasons for the breakdown in international and domestic trade today in the opinion of Ferriss. He asserted that the actual burden of these debts in terms of goods and services is far greater than when the debts were incurred. In many cases, the effort to pay impoverishes the debtor to such an extent that his general purchasing power is already curtailed.

Financial Strain Spreads

NOT ONLY THE INDIVIDUAL and the private corporation are thus affected, but the strain is also felt by state and municipal governments which have passed through an era of over-expansion and extravagance and are now faced with the problems of reduced income and, in some cases, of unemployment relief.

The necessity for these public bodies to follow the same course pursued by corporate management in eliminating all unnecessary expenditures and practicing strict economy was emphasized by Mr. Ferriss. He declared that the necessary decline in purchasing power from this source is an outstanding contributing factor to the present situation and it must also be attributed largely to the over-extension of credit when prices were high.

In summarizing his attitude on the dangers of granting credit on the basis of inflated prices Ferriss said:

"It may follow then that we, the investment bankers, as well as the commercial bankers, and other credit agencies, have it within our power to minimize the ultimate evils of periods of inflation by discouraging the granting of credit based on values resulting from rapid price increases. If the loan value of stocks and bonds could be determined not by their price at the moment, but by their average price level, over some reasonable period, sudden and rapid increases in debts secured by such collateral could be largely eliminated.

Long-Time Value Fixing

"IF THE VALUES OF fixed assets securing long-time mortgage debt could be determined, not by new appraisals or temporary high costs but by the average valuation or cost of similar assets over a period of years, then the burden on the owner of meeting the fixed charges on that long-time debt would not prove so disastrous during the next period of deflation. Likewise, in granting municipal credit, if assessed valuation and tax-paying ability were measured in terms of average years and actual past experience, the periodical temptation to municipal extravagance could be substantially checked.

"The difficulties in applying this conservative principle at all times is fully recognized. Sharp competition, the desire to expand, new inventions, young blood—all these factors add to the flames of inflation and cannot be fully quenched. Yet it would appear that some means of preventing the over-extension of credit is necessary for eliminating the evils of unbridled speculation and its attendant evil—a period of long drawn-out depression.

"If we can impress this conviction on our minds now so strongly that our memories will not fail us in the future, then in the next period of rising prices our influence may serve as a useful brake on the wheels."

U. S. FINANCING OUTLOOK GOOD

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—(INS.)—Noticeable improvement has developed in the outlook for successful refinancing of nearly a billion dollars in government paper December 15, Treasury officials said today.

The situation was highly discouraging two weeks ago when gold exports and an increase in hoarding tightened the money market and boosted the average price of government 90-day paper from less than ½ of 1 per cent to 2.69 per cent.

The December maturity consists of $451,718,950 in 3½ per cent notes and $543,000,000 in 1⅛ per cent certificates. Market conditions are now favorable both to new note and certificate issues, in the opinion of experts.

Wholesale Prices Now on Upgrade

Is In Pittsburgh Again With a Message of Cheer for All Little Girls
Read Her Joyous Holiday Letter

Dear Little Girls:

Here I am back in Pittsburgh for the Christmas holidays. I want to tell you at the start that I'm mighy glad to be with you again because I never can and never will forget the hundreds of friends I made here last year. I came here a little early because I know that I am going to have a lot of busy days and nights before the Christmas trees begin to glow. And I have so many lovely dollies to distribute that I really need more time this year than I did last year.

I recall with delight how you all fell in love with my "Tickletoes" last year and I still cherish the hundreds of letters I received from little girls who get one of those gorgeous dolls.

And now I'm here for the same purpose—just to make little girls supremely happy when the Christmas holidays come. I fully realize that there would be many, many little girls who could not get a dolly this year because, perhaps, daddy is out of work or brothers and sisters have had their pay cut on account of business conditions that have made so many families reduce their expenses and cut out luxuries such as the dollies you love.

This Is "Honeybunch," Isn't She Lovely and Adorable?

I didn't bring "Tickletoes" with me this year, but I brought her first cousin—"Honeybunch," who is almost a twin of "Tickletoes." I did this because I can give away more "Honeybunches" with less effort on your part to get them.

"Honeybunch" has all the same lovable qualities that you adored in "Tickletoes." Mischievous eyes that roll either way, beaming smile on her really beautiful face, unbreakable rubber arms and hands, dressed in beautiful organdy, rubber panties, a darling cap with lace ribbons, a charming voice and she's just about 20 inches tall.

Incidentally, I have a warehouse crammed full of these different than any other dollies. I have been working ever since last Christmas getting ready for my second annual visit to you and I'll tell you that this big warehouse is just a storehouse of happiness. Every doll is waiting to get out and into some little girl's arms and some little girl's home.
Now, just bear in mind that I have made it very much easier for you to get a really magnificent doll this year. There is no reason why any little girl should be without her new playmate for Christmas.

Now, of course, hundreds of little girls in Pittsburgh and vicinity will want a "Honeybunch" dolly for all their very own. They are going to be easy to get. The Doll Lady is going to ask every little girl who wants one to do just a simple little thing for her, and if you want a "Honeybunch" clip out the coupon below, fill in your name and address, and she will send you a letter telling all the details.

THE LOVE TRAP -:- Story of a Girl's Struggle For Love and Happiness -:- By ROBERT TERRY SHANNON

CHAPTER XVI

It was foolishness—stark, unreasoning disregard of common sense that sent Mary speeding toward the danger-infested flat that held Steve prisoner. Yet it was more than madness—the hurrying, driving force, in part, was the distilled essence of her very life. It was imbecile optimism—but it was, too, the virtue named courage.

She turned into a dim narrow entrance and found her way up two flights of tenement stairs. At the last door on the right she stopped, hesitated a moment, and rapped with her knuckles. There was a sound of indistinct voices. Someone crossed the room, a man came and opened the door. He stood there waiting for her to speak and she got a little more excited.

"Do you work for Mr. Landers?"

"Who wants to know?"

"I do."

"I never heard of Mr. Landers," said the man.

He was slim and swarthy with a beak of nose. His jet hair was oiled and brushed so that it glistened. He wore a blue shirt of heavy silk.

"Think you've heard of Mr. Landers all right," Mary said. Her voice had a nervous tension. "I'm coming in."

DENY STEVE'S PRESENCE

The man at the door spoke over his shoulder to some invisible person. "The lady says she's coming in, Maxie."

"Yeah?"

"Yeah, that's what she says."

"Well, it's just too bad—but it can't be helped now. Let her in."

The door opened wider and Mary walked into the cheaply furnished room. It was a parlor. The second man, Maxie, was heavier than the first, but he had the same skin and eyes and polished hair. They looked like they were bored. The one behind Mary locked the door and put the key in his pocket.

"Oh, hell, she don't want a drink."

"She wants something," said Maxie.

"Maybe she came up here because she's stuck on your shape, Maxie," jeered the younger.

Mary shivered inwardly with revulsion, but her nervous edge remained keen. She held her hand bag containing the automatic pistol close to her.

"I came here to find Steve Moore," she told them. "I happen to know for a fact that this is the place."

The men looked at each other, yet their expressions did not change. They had an arrogant kind of calmness.

"I never heard any guy named Steve Moore in my life. Did you, Maxie?"

REALIZES MISTAKE

"It ain't healthy for you to know too much, girlie," remarked Maxie. "Where do you get all your information?"

"Maybe she works in the information bureau," wisecracked the other.

"Nix—don't get too fresh," Maxie snapped at his friend. To Mary he said, "Don't mind him, he's drinking. It's a cinch Buck Landers never sent you here, ain't it?"

Mary was silent. Gradually it was beginning to dawn upon her that she had projected herself into a situation that might prove too much for her resources. Something of her impetuosity began to fade and she realized tardily that she should have sought help. Any policeman would have aided her.

"I'll tell you what we'll do," said Maxie. "We'll telephone Buck and see what he says. You don't need to worry about anything, lady—we know you're aces with Buck and we'll take awful good care of you."

The younger man suddenly seemed to regret his previous insolence. "That's right, don't mind our kidding. Buck himself understands it. It's all fun, see?"

Mary protested, tried now that it was too late to leave the room, but Maxie would not allow the door to be unlocked. He took her by the arm and led her to another room which proved to be a kitchen. She realized the futility of struggling with him.

"You'll be all right here while we phone Buck," he said, with an effort at politeness. "Don't get worried—everything is going to be all right."

He went back into the other room and closed the door behind him. She examined the room, but there was no way of escape unless she chose to leap out of a third story window. Strangely, she was not as much alarmed as she felt she ought to be.

NEW ENCOURAGEMENT

Beneath the surface of her mind hope continued to germinate. Buck Landers had made his big melodramatic gesture, common sense told her he had probably gone his limit. He was too shrewd, she reasoned, to allow these cheap toughs to put Steve out of the way—to kill him. Such a course would inevitably put Landers at the mercy of his mongrel hirelings. To kidnap Steve and hold him for a while did not have the seriousness of murder and Landers's gambling nature permitted him to take this minor risk. It grew increasingly clear in Mary's mind that from now on Landers would be bluffing, no matter what he said. A steady tide of new encouragement began to run through her.

From the other room she heard the two men talking but their voices were indistinct. She sat down and waited. Somewhere in the place she was positive Steve was present. The feeling grew until she imagined the whole place was laden with his personality. It was as though he was sending out mental radiations. She sat very quietly and tried to sense, to picture, him. He would be tied hand and foot, she imagined. The bonds must be irking him; his body would be sore and stiff. He had been knocked unconscious—but Bat had assured her he was not seriously injured.

FACES LANDERS

With a determined effort she held her sympathy in check. It would be impossible for her to help him if she became hysterical with emotion. She would give him a million caresses to soothe his hurts—she would obliterate all of his suffering with her tenderness . . . but it was miraculous that she could thus hang onto her morale . . .

Like most women she had imagined herself a coward. The truth was she had been prepared by degrees for this crisis. She was like an athlete who had been trained to perform marvels—she had been through an emotional regime that had put her in top form, instead of breaking her down. And always at the center of her being was that warm glow which represented her love for Steve Moore. It was her talisman. Time after time it flooded her with new strength.

Maxie, thoroughly obsequious now, came into the room.

"The boss is here now—he wants to talk to you."

She came to face Buck Landers with a curious feeling that their positions were now reversed—that she could almost laugh at his stony-faced grimness. Her heart held love and his heart sheltered evil. His worst enemy was locked up inside his own breast . . .

"You can step outside and wait," Landers said to Maxie. When they were alone he looked at her with a cold eye. "Well, I see you've succeeded in making things more difficult for both of us," he said. "Too bad you were not smart enough to be sensible."

GOADS HIM

She was able to be calm and confident. "Doesn't it strike you, Mr. Landers, that it's a bit ridiculous, the way you try to frighten me all the time? You try so hard to be dangerous—but I'm sure you'd quit it if you knew how silly it is."

It was a positive relief, as though some pressure had been loosened, to be able to talk this way to him. Mary was conscious of a lifting sensation in her breast. His outer shell seemed to crack a little, ever so slightly his eyes wavered.

"Let's talk this over," he said. "I think I can convince you—"

Her head raised a little and the soft lips curved with a fine scorn. Triumphant youth within her was ascending.

"Oh, don't let's start up that old argument again! Honestly, I'm sick of hearing it, Mr. Landers. And you have no idea how tired I am of seeing you look stern like Bill Hart. You're wasting your time and making a fool of yourself, besides."

Color crept into his cheeks. "Yes?" he asked with somewhat labored nonchalance.

"I shouldn't think it would be much fun," she said, with deliberate cruelty, "for a man of your age to try to force himself on a girl young enough to be his daughter—or maybe his granddaughter. I should think it would make him feel so terribly cheap."

She had, at last, reached him with a barbed arrow. The color leaped to his face like a dye. She could see a small vein in his temple throbbing. For an instant she held her breath, apprehensive that she had goaded him to fury. If the glacier should turn into a volcano . . .

But the searing flame within him was not anger.

"I'm not old. I'm strong as oak!" he cried, but there was something baited and wounded in his voice. "I'm better today than I ever was in my life. If you think I am a worn out blank cartridge—"

SHOOTS AT HIM

He stopped and looked at her with burning eyes. This was new—this loss of self-possession.

Mary moved around until a chair was between them. Her fingers twisted the clasp of Carlotta Guido's hand bag, her own hand crept inside and closed smoothly over the automatic. Now, if ever, she would have to hold her nerves like steel.

"You won't do anything to harm me, and you won't do anything more that can harm Steve, because you can't," she said. She was tense, yet flexible. Anybody could shoot a gun if they had to. "I think you're at the end of your string, Mr. Landers."

"What do you mean by that wise-crack?"

"I mean there's only two of us in this room," Mary said, a strange note in her voice. "You're standing near the door. If you don't open it and walk out, I'm going to shoot you."

A faint smile of disbelief showed on his lips.

"I wouldn't believe it if you did," he said.

She disengaged the automatic from the hand bag and pointed it at him.

"You had better go!" she warned, her voice sounding strange above the beating of her heart. "I'm going to get Steve out of this place, no matter what happens."

Landers took a step toward her.

"Nobody ever shot me yet."

He reached to take the gun from Mary's hand, and at that instant she pressed the trigger.

FINDS STEVE

The roar filled the room and a bit of cloth sprang from the shoulder of Lander's coat. He took two steps backward, and stared at her. There was smoke between them. Mary suddenly was unnerved; tears ran down her cheeks. She was still pointing the weapon at his breast.

"I'll—I'll" But no other words could come from her tightened throat.

Still staring at her, Buck Landers took another backward step, pulled open the door. At the sound of the weapon, his two henchmen in the hall fled. And now Landers himself was breaking. Mary had never seen his face so white.

Swiftly, without dignity, he sprang out of the room—slammed the door shut. The key had been left in the lock when Maxie had admitted Landers. Mary turned it and took it out. She put the gun on the table and stood there trembling—yes, she inevitably would have fired again . . . There was another locked door in the room. She tried the key in this one, and it worked.

She walked through one bedroom and into another. Steve was stretched out on a bed. He was in his shirt sleeves; his arms and legs were bound with clothesline. His head was on a pillow; his mouth and jaws were trussed with tight cloth. At the sight of her, he struggled to lift himself up, but the ropes that held him were tied firmly to the side of the bed, and his struggles were useless.

"Oh, my darling!" She flew at the gag with her fingers and succeeded in loosening it. Her arms went around his head and strained it to her breast. She bent down till her cheeks pressed against his face and wet it with her tears.

"Find a knife—cut me loose."

His voice was dry, stifled. She ran to the kitchen and found an old butcher knife. In a moment she had slashed him free. He got to his feet with her arms around him. His arms and legs were like wood; he could scarcely move them.

LEAVE HOUSE

"I think I was dozing—that shot woke me up. What happened?"

She put an arm under his shoulder and propelled him back into the parlor—toward the only outside door. "Hurry, Steve. We'll have to hurry."

The circulation came back slowly to his numbed thumbs. Mary picked up his coat and hat from a chair. She lost the key to the outer door for a moment and then found it again. Steve stumbled with her into the dim hall. A dazed panic of flight was upon them both. The shot had aroused the house. She urged him along more rapidly, as heads peered out of doorways—poor women in disreputable wrappers, dark-eyed children, an old Italian with a bald head and corded neck. A slattern woman kept crying: "Get the police!" Somebody else implored them, "Who was shot in here?" They hurried down the stairs. No one stopped them at the front door.

"Do you work for Landers?"

She examined the room.

What Has Gone Before

Pretty Mary Kennedy breaks her engagement to elderly Buck Landers, wealthy sports promoter, when she falls in love with his young ward, Steve Ward. Landers tries to force Mary to marry him by kidnaping Steve and threatening him, unless she does. He gives Mary 24 hours to decide. She enlists the aid of Carlotta, Landers' former sweetheart, who suggests that a flirtation with Bat may reveal Steve's whereabouts. Carlotta and Mary go to see Landers and Carlotta warns him against the kidnaping. Landers orders her out. Later Mary discovers she has Carlotta's purse by mistake. It contains an automatic. Mary encourages Bat. Flattered by her attentions, Bat takes Mary to lunch. After drinking some liquor, he tells her where Steve is.

Time

What has Time taught me
Through the swift years?
What has he brought me?
Laughter and tears.

Gifts that were shining,
Gifts that were gray;
Rare joys divining,
But for a day!

What has Time told me?
Treasures of truth.
Yet they were sold me
Dearly, for youth!

Youth was the payment
On Time's demand.
Youth's gorgeous raiment
Made for love's land.

Life's tree is shaken
Of hopes I sought,
Yet Time has taken
Less than he brought!

CHINATOWN, Manchuria.—Well, here I am, folks, feeling fit as a fiddle. I tripped down the gangplank at exactly 4:46, Eastern daylight saving time, by my testimonial watch and fob awarded to me by employes of the Wannamakeher stores in recognition of 25 years of faithful service in the wrapping and tieing department. As soon as I can find a room—oh, nothing pretentious; just something snug and cozy and not too inexpensive—I will go right to the bottom of things. And in the meantime, if any of my readers chance to run across Mrs. Frisby will they kindly tell her to send me another shirt. I lost mine on the boat coming over. Until tomorrow, then, let us just rest and relax.

Charity Begins at Home

With the launching today of the campaign to raise approximately $6,000,000 for the Welfare Fund and the Emergency Association, the charity of the people of the Pittsburgh district is again being placed to the test.

The city has a fine reputation to maintain. Its beneficence to the stricken inhabitants of foreign lands in the period immediately following the war made the name of Pittsburgh one to conjure with among relief workers. In one of the campaigns to ease distress in the Near East Pittsburgh did better than any other city.

Now the people are called upon to give of their means, to an extent never before reached, for the succor of the poor and needy among their own neighbors. Charity begins at home.

The drive will not only be a test of Pittsburgh, but also of individual character. Other virtues matter little if one lacks love for one's fellowmen. In St. Paul's words, ''Though I speak with the tongues of men and of angels, and have not charity, I am become as sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal.''

An Undesirable Tax

The Proposed State Levy on Cigarets Would Be Unjust, Unpopular and Inadequate.

In Gov. Pinchot's proclamation calling the Legislature into special session at Harrisburg today to relieve unemployment he presented a program of 15 legislative proposals. The fourteenth on the list was a tax on cigarets.

The Sun-Telegraph is convinced by study of the experience of other states which have imposed a cigaret tax that it would be unjust, unpopular and inadequate.

The fact should be faced in the first place that cigarets are not a luxury but for many persons virtually a necessity—they would suffer if deprived of them.

It is worthy of note in this connection that the survey of consumer habits recently conducted by R. L. Polk & Co., city directory publishers, for the Sun-Telegraph, showed that cigarets are used by one or more members of the family in 48 per cent of the families of Pittsburgh.

Now a federal tax of 6 cents is already imposed on every 15-cent pack of cigarets. To impose a state tax on top of this already enormous federal tax would be unfair.

The people would resent it. Many would strive to evade payment of the state tax. They would order cigarets by parcel post from other states. They would buy from cigaret bootleggers. They would roll their own. Some would reduce their consumption of cigarets because of the tax.

That has been the experience elsewhere. The per capita consumption of cigarets in the United States last year was 975, but the average for the five states with a cigaret tax—Iowa, Kansas, North Dakota, South Dakota and Utah—was 431.

The tax has been a disappointment. It has failed to yield the returns expected. It has been a nuisance to the consumer, to the dealer and to the state.

Pennsylvania should profit by the experience of the states that have experimented with a cigaret tax, a number of which have repealed it after a fair trial, and save itself from trouble.

Sigma Xi Lectures

Honorary Scientific Society Makes a Notable Contribution To Local Educational Opportunities.

The Sun-Telegraph had occasion recently to allude to the opportunities for self-advancement, education and the acquisition of culture that are to be found in some of the radio broadcasts.

Even more noteworthy in this connection are the free public lectures given in Pittsburgh every winter by the authorities on various interesting and important subjects. The Carnegie Institute offers talks on a variety of scientific and artistic topics.

The matter has been brought to attention afresh by the announcement of a series of free public lectures to be given by the University of Pittsburgh Chapter of Sigma Xi, the honorary scientific society.

Under its auspices Dr. Andrey Avinoff, director of the Carnegie Museum; Dr. Melville Jean Herskovits, assistant professor of anthropology at Northwestern University, and Nels Christian Nelson, curator of prehistoric archeology at the American Museum of Natural History, New York City, are to give a series of lectures, open to the public without charge, on the culture of prehistoric man. The lectures will not be technical, and the recent discoveries that have been made about our remote ancestors should be of general interest.

The lectures are mentioned here as another illustration of the fact that the city offers a vast amount of mentally nourishing entertainment to those who have time for other than frivolous things.

The Spreading Chestnut

Passing of One of Our Most Important Native Nut Trees Is a Real Misfortune

The Department of Forests and Waters has just issued a report on Pennsylvania's nut crop, a timely subject.

The yield this year is bountiful, we are told, and nutting parties will find plenty of pleasure in this old-fashioned autumn pastime.

The department proceeds to tell us what kinds of nuts may be found growing wild in Pennsylvania—black walnuts, butternuts, six kinds of hickory nuts, two kinds of hazel nuts and others.

Little is said, alas, about the grandest nut tree of them all, the spreading chestnut tree.

The chestnut has practically become extinct. Once one of the most abundant and valuable of our forest trees, in the last 20 years it has been virtually wiped out by a blight not only in Pennsylvania but in all the Eastern states.

Chestnut trees have now become so scarce that scientists are seeking records of every individual tree that may still survive anywhere.

The destruction of this species, one of the most beautiful, popular and useful of our forest trees, in so short a time, is almost, if not altogether, unparalleled.

What a misfortune it is! What a loss to the children that are to come!

NAVY LEAGUE INVESTIGATION COMMITTEE (HAND PICKED) WHITE WASH
ENRIGHT

Do not be the slightest surprised, Dear Reader, since Mr. Hoover's hand-picked commission, selected primarily from his official family, whitewashed the serious charges against the Administration's treatment of the United States Navy made by the Navy League.

It was hardly to be expected that the commissioners would do otherwise than endorse the Chief Executive who appointed them.

But that expected whitewash will not end the matter. There is Congress to consider and the electorate, and nothing less than a THOROUGH INVESTIGATION BY CONGRESS of the condition of the Navy and the Administration's treatment of it will satisfy the citizenry.

Marry-Go-Round

This Thing, Called 'Love'

The things which pass for "love" there days are almost as numerous as the things which pass for "pre-war liquor." Or for heart failure.

Every day, somebody discovers a new definition of love. We are all trying to reduce love to a formula—like the baby's milk or mother's reducing diet.

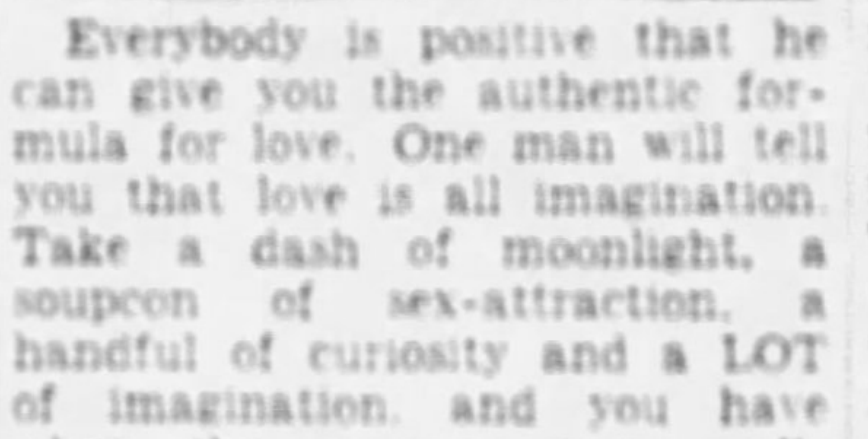
But that is the elusive thing about the quaint old emotion. It can't be analyzed. Like cancer or the common cold, it can't be accounted for. Yet, like the little dandelion, it goes right on springing up and blossoming, where it is least expected or encouraged.



Everybody is positive that he can give you the authentic formula for love. One man will tell you that love is all imagination. Take a dash of moonlight, a soupcon of sex-attraction, a handful of curiosity and a LOT of imagination, and you have what the average man calls "love."

Another will cynically assure you that love is nothing but sex-attraction, that all the rest is the bunk. And most young moderns will agree with him. They honestly believe that romance, companionship and spiritual affinity are away back in the class with tatted tidies and horsehair sofas.

Yet, if love were nothing but sex-appeal, then every man would be in love with every personable gal he chanced to cast his eye upon. And wouldn't THAT be confusing.

Still another man will inform you that love is 90 per cent of vanity and 10 per cent love of adventure. Or love of conquest. Or love of experiment.

And all of them are RIGHT. For loves comes in as many guises and disguises as rabbit's fur or the late Lon Chaney. You know love when you SEE it—and you know it when you FEEL it. But you can't give a formula for it!

You know that it is made up of a lot of things—desire, tenderness, romance, sex-attraction, vanity, selfishness, infatuation and imagination.

But, you never know the QUANTITIES of the ingredients. You can't tell which is the dominating emotion—in your love or in anybody else's.

The truth is that love is different in every human soul, and in every human heart. No two people are speaking of the same emotion, when they speak of love.

In one man love may be three-quarters a desire to possess, to dominate, even to bully some unfortunate woman, and one-quarter something else. In another, love may be three parts tenderness, to one part vanity or selfishness or physical attraction. Love is always a mixture. But, there is NO authentic formula for it. For, what may be love to YOU or to ME, would not be love to any other person in all the world.

* * *

That is why this column never gives any canned "advice" on personal love problems. We don't play handball with T. N. T. In 15 years of careful research, we have never been able to find the definition of love!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up and came W. C. Gibson, dean of the magazine art editors, from his Broad Acres in Virginia and he has taken on the manners of the landed gentleman. And told me of his wanderings through Italy and France during the year which gave me the needles to be off again.

Abroad with my wife and put in at the Algonquin to see Flora Zabelle, one of the nicest stage ladies known, but she was away and so to the dog mart to have the Sealyham clipped. Thence to Rumpelmayer's for tea and I drank a flagon of carbonated orange juice, very tasty.

To dinner at Ray Long's and as neat a peach cobbler as I've had since Aunt Betty's. And afterward we sat talking of newspapers, columnists, magazines and books, and I find his views, as always, the most stimulating I hear. So home early to my couch.

Hundreds in attic obscurity pecking away at the great American novel were heartened by the recent sale of Harry Harrison Kroll of his first three novels—three he finished several years ago but feared to send to publishers. When Mr. Kroll came to New York two months ago to sign his contracts with Ray Long's new firm it was the first time he had been out of his native Tennessee. Living in the hill-billy regions, he did not go to school until past 20. His novels deal with the drama of so-called "Poor White Trash."

Officials of a midtown security house pirouetted into a pale faced huddle the other noon. An outer guard reported a tattered and almost shoeless gentleman appeared out of nowhere to stand at the curb holding aloft a banner: "I Bought My Securities Here." It was a difficult situation. An arrest would mean further publicity. In the end, a policeman was counselled to lead the offender away—but not to a police cell. O, dear no!

Personal nomination for the most capable phone operator in the town—Alice Pool at Ziegfeld's.

Speakeasies among the devotees are rated according to bartenders. Thus a one bartender grog shop is somewhat a dump. But a "seven-bartendered place" is likely to be packed to overflowing. Incidentally, I am told that in the flossy places expert drink mixers are paid $100 a week, which with tips, often amounts to $150. It is understood, too, that in case of raid they will be subjected to no legal expenses and bail will be furnished free.

And the "speaks" are reverberating with the revenge a New York banker has on a pair of blackmailers. He was jockeyed one night into sitting at a table in a speakeasy with a glittering lady of the half world. During the innocent enough conversation the "husband" came in, started to raise a disturbance but finally left with the lady. Next day a solicitor in a check shirt called. In subsequent arrangements, the banker, pleading shortage of cash, agreed to pay $2,500 in currency and $7,500 in stock of his ban[illegible]. The blackmailers deposited the check in his bank. Three days later the bank closed, under the law the owners of stock were assessed the amount of their holdings.

There is a mystic hush along upper Riverside Drive around sundown when nature lovers stand along the parapet watching the fading splendor on the Jersey horizon with the palisades in nocturnal profile. Many are artists and many just city dwellers from cramped crags sharing a brief escape from reality. There is the twilight mystery of the Madeleine in that sleepy gold twinkle of the sun as it poises a few seconds before sliding out of sight. The Hudson at such intervals mirrors the spangled glint in a dancing radiance. And last evening a Celtic bus driver added his enthusiasm by gazing and exclaiming: "Jeeminy, ain't that a darb! Mister?"

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Long ago someone sent me this—

"In his 'Analecta' Robert Woodrow has a touching incident of his own father. 'He was much affected with his worthy son, Mr. Alexander Woodrow's death, it being somewhat sudden and surprizing. Yet he carried very Christianly under that sharp dispensation. . . He went down to the place where his son's corpse was. He stayed some time. They enquired at him what he had been doing there. 'I was,' says he, 'thanking God for thretty-one years' loan of Sandy, my dear son.' "

"A loan" . . . have you ever thought of those you love that way?

We say—"my child" . . . "my husband" . . . "my mother and father" . . . "my wife"—

But they are not ours. They do not belong to us. We do not belong to them. We have not created the miracle of love which lies between us. They are only loaned . . . they are only blessed visitors. And there is about them a mystery and strangeness which we should respect.

"Men are spirits clad in veils.
"Man by man was never seen.
"All our striving somehow fails
"To lift that which lies between."

That is true. We are "spirits clad in veils" . . . we are only "loaned" to each other. And nine-tenths of our human misery would be eliminated if we would realize and act upon that fact. But we don't and won't!

We insist that we own our loved ones. We feel that there is no place in their lives that we have not a right to enter . . . that all their acts, however secret, should be open to our criticism and judgment. We insist that they agree with us . . . are hurt if they do not confide in us. We build our lives about them. We make them responsible for our happiness.

"Do you think of me every minute of the day?" cries a sweetheart. And her lover, lying like a gentleman, responds that he does.

"Why, I've never had a thought outside my family!" says some aggrieved wife. And thinks she deserves medals.

So we try to possess love and be possessed by it. And if the loved one attempts to lead a life of his own, we are outraged.

We feel that a monstrous injustice has been done us. We have been cheated—wronged. How can he neglect us . . . why should he wish "a life of his own" . . . if he truly loves us?

So we go through life, trying to harness and possess that wild, strange thing, Love . . . trying to break through its reserves and subdue it to our purpose . . . wrangling, heckling, meddling, making a miserable mess of that which should be our loveliest mystery and blessing.

And then Death comes . . . and takes that loved one. And we cry out in shock and horror at our loss. Why should we be robbed? Why should God take from us our dearest possession? How can we go on living, with our loved one gone?

But that one who has gone was not our dearest possession. We had no right to regard him as a possession . . . or to build ourselves around him. He was only "loaned." We were blessed far beyond our desserts to have had such a loan even for a day. How incomparably sweeter that day might have been if we had treated love as a mystery . . . if we had respected its strangeness . . . had rejoiced in its rarity, instead of trying to own it.

HOW TERRIBLE THAT LOVE MUST SOMETIMES TURN TO HATE, BEFORE WE WILL RESPECT IT . . . AND LOSE ITSELF IN DEATH BEFORE IT CAN BE FREE!

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

You look back on your old cronies with considerable longing and wish that you could find as good pals in your new home as you had in your youth.

You felt that you were popular among the crowd and you were welcome at all their social gatherings.

Another and an outside influence came into your life and made you want to reach out and make more of yourself than you had in the past.

Responsibilities came and it was necessary for you to have more money to discharge your obligations and meet your ideals.

So you had to leave the loyal good friends and go out and carve a future.

It has meant self sacrifice and rigid self discipline.

You have not had time in many years to sit around with the boys and tell stories and be the life of the party.

In some ways you regret losing the companionship of the group.

But did the group inspire you to hard work?

The most ambition you felt then was to get enough money to spend as the others did for a good time.

To have got an incentive to push forward and do a man's job instead of being sought as the "good fellow" is worth being lonely at times.

RIFLES TAKEN FROM CHINESE BY JAPANESE SOLDIERS.

You remember what Hiram Johnson, Senator from California, said about the so-called ''war'' between China and Japan? ''There cannot be any war between CHOPSTICKS and MACHINE GUNS.''

China, with her 400,000,000 population, represents the chopsticks, Japan with only 60,000,000, but with THE WILL TO FIGHT and a magnificent fighting organization, represents the machine gun.

This picture, which tells you more about the Eastern trouble than could be put into several columns of words, shows Japanese soldiers arranging some rifles taken from Chinese soldiers.

The Japanese saved all their energy in the big war, merely watching and ''taking lessons,'' while we sent 3,000,000 men and ten billions of dollars. But they know how to be active and efficient when THEY are interested.

They have invested more than a BILLION real dollars in Manchuria, and they don't mean to lose their money. In fact, they are in Manchuria now, and they probably mean to STAY there, allowing the Chinese, of course, to work for them.

A few exploding bombs, dropping from the sky, followed by Japanese troops, roaring along in armored cars, with steel ''tanks'' that can go through stone walls and over ditches, are not calculated to make the unfortunate Chinese feel happy or self-confident.

To conquer in war you must first BE PREPARED, and, second, you must be WILLING TO FIGHT.

The Japanese are prepared, and they are willing to fight. This country, also, is willing to fight, as it has occasionally proved, but it is far from being PREPARED.

THE UNIVERSE

By Archibald Henderson

When we use the word probability in science we do not employ it in the loose sense of the man in the street. We employ it in a definite, technical sense, as employed by actuaries and insurance companies. The laws of probability have been elaborately established by scientists, and it is these laws we employ when we arrive at conclusions reached by invoking probability.

One of the most interesting questions has to do with the universe and its possible duration in an orderly fashion. Is everything guided by chance, or is there some definite purpose informing and guiding the universe? The scientist leaves off all theological questions, and inquires what the findings of theory and practice, in the universe as it is, seem to indicate.

Many scientists think it can be demonstrated that the existence of an uncontrolled universe throughout all eternity is infinitely improbable. Energy radiates out into space in the form of heat, and so there is a steady degradation of energy. Eventually there must result some sort of neutral condition or state of equilibrium when nothing would be left in the universe but a pale glow of faint warmth. However, the universe has already had an indefinite, although presumably not an infinite, time in its past, to run down; but it has not done so. It must follow then that some restorative force must be at work, a creative source of energy. Millikan finds this restorative force in the cosmic rays. We know that matter, taken as energy, expresses itself in radiation. Millikan believes in the reverse process. He thinks that great stores of cosmic rays, at some remote localities in the universe, are re-making themselves or being transformed back into matter.

Energy cannot wander entirely away in the form of radiation, for the world, as now seen by scientists, is not infinite in extent. So a finitive universe is being built up as fast as it is breaking down: the law of the conservation of energy is being maintained. The universe is a mechanism, let us say, like a clock which, as fast as it runs down, is concurrently wound up again.

For instance, J. Arthur Thompson, in his work, Concerning Evolution, says: A multitude of "preparation" conspired together to make the earth a home for life: the making of an atmosphere and a hydrosphere, the properties of water and carbonic acid gas separately and together, the properties and abundance of carbon, hydrogen and oxygen near the surface of the cooling earth, the ready assumption of a colloidal state by complex carbon compounds, the regulative influence of the meteorological cycle. From a broader basis we may say that it looks as if Inorganic Nature was as it is with a purpose.

It is hardly open to question that the world is constantly building up something more complex and elaborate. As Prof. Oliver L. Reiser puts it, human beings are laboring in the creation of a higher order—though we may be as ignorant as molecules as to the character of that order.
